

Norton Seeks Clear Path in House for New Pay-Hour Bill

She Calls Measure 'Most Equitable' Group
Can Draft
MAY ACT TOMORROW
Makes Her First Appearance Before Rules Committee

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) of the house labor committee declared today that the revamped wages and hours bill was "the most fair and equitable" one her committee could draft.

Mrs. Norton made the declaration in urging the house rules committee, which bottled up the original wage-hour bill for months last year, to give the revised measure a legislative green light.

Chairman O'Connor (D-N. Y.) of the rules committee, told newsmen no decision would be made until tomorrow on Mrs. Norton's request that the bill be given preferential status on the house calendar. He indicated members opposed to the legislation would be heard tomorrow.

Making her first personal appearance before the rules committee in behalf of the bill, Mrs. Norton said her committee felt the house should be accorded an opportunity to vote the revised bill "up or down."

Explains Proposal

Mrs. Norton said a recent WPA survey showed the lowest annual wage in this country was paid "not in the south, but in Wichita, Kans." where she said the figure was $2.10. She explained the new bill would establish a graduated minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents at the end of three years.

"For the first year," the labor chairman said, "that would provide an annual wage of only $520."

She contended such a low minimum could not distort business inasmuch as it was far below the lowest figures now paid.

"The purpose of this bill," she said, "is to bring up the wage-level of the very lowest paid groups and to cut out sweatshop conditions."

Chairman Norton said she was "inclined to believe" that Representative Martin (R-Mass.), ranking Republican on the rules committee, would support the bill.

Two of the other three Republican committeemen, however, were on the doubtful list, and southerners among the 10 Democrats also were adamant against sending the measure to the house floor.

Many legislators said that refusal by the rules committee to give the bill preferential status would kill it for this session. Talk revived among proponents, however, of resorting to a petition to place the bill directly before the house.

Doubt Success of Plan

House leaders expressed doubt that this method, requiring signatures of 218 representatives, would be successful. It was used last winter after the rules committee had

Explorer Claims Proof Paul Redfern Is Dead

Georgetown, British Guiana—(AP)—Theodore J. Waldeck, New York explorer, returning from four months of perilous search for trace of Paul Redfern, missing American aviator, declared today that Redfern was dead.

"I found the place where the plane crashed and definite proof that the gallant aviator is dead," Waldeck said.

He gave no further details of his discovery, saying first he must forward a report to Dr. Frederick C. Redfern of Columbia, S. C., father of the flier.

Redfern disappeared in August, 1927, in an attempt to fly non-stop from Brunswick, Ga., to Brazil. Strange tales have come out of the steaming jungle of British Guiana since then—one saying that Redfern had become the "great white god" of a jungle tribe.

Waldeck reported his expedition had reached the border of Venezuela.

Methodist Unity Wins Support at Alabama Session

Address From College of Bishops Favors Union
With Northern Church

Birmingham, Ala.—(AP)—Union with northern Methodists, decried by opponents as likely of church destruction, was "commended" today to the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in a history-making address from the college of bishops.

Read by Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs of Shreveport, La., the episcopal address embodied recommendations of the bishops to the general conference, and "commended" the unification plan to be formally presented tomorrow as worthy of "thorough consideration and such action as is befitting the most important matter before the church since its organization followed the split in 1844 over slavery."

Disagree With Plan

Two retired bishops, Collins Denney of Richmond, Va., and Warren A. Candler of Atlanta, Ga., did not agree with the plan of union, and did not sign the Episcopal address.

In a supplementary statement they termed the unification plan a "dangerous arrangement" and challenged the legal right of this conference to act on it.

The racial question also was one of the objections raised by opponents. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

Consider Summer Traffic Program

Commissioners Hear Recommendations by Truck
Line Operators

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission took under advisement today recommendations of truck line operators and a state traffic engineer on contemplated regulation of weekend and holiday traffic on Wisconsin highways.

Commissioner R. Floyd Green and Philip H. Porter, transportation director, presided at a hearing on a proposal to restrict operation of heavy trucks from Memorial day until shortly after Labor day.

Most discussion was based on a revision of programs followed in previous years as recommended by C. N. Maurer, commission traffic engineer.

Maurer recommended removal of restrictions on Highway 12, from Menomonie to Eau Claire, and on Highway 55, from Fond du Lac to Green Bay.

He suggested the regulations should apply to Highway 16, from West Salem to Tomah; Highway 57, from Kiel to the junction with Highway 10; Highway 100, from the junction with Highway 57 to the southeast end of the highway; and on Highway 45, from the Illinois line to the junction with 100, and from Fond du Lac to the junction with 41 near Oshkosh.

M. F. Kresky, of Green Bay, urged the commission to include cheese and fish in products to be exempt from a ban on holiday delivery.

Parker Pen Employees Vote for Closed Shop

Janesville—(AP)—By a vote of 413 to 135, the employees of the Parker Pen company voted for a closed shop in an election yesterday under the supervision of the state labor board. The A.F. of L. Pen and Pencil Workers union contract with the company expires June 1. The closed shop contract clause will be included in the new contract which the union will seek from the company, Martin Thompson, union president, said.

Earned Income Tax Case Goes To High Court

Railway Executive Tries to Avoid Payments to
Two States
PLEADS 'DOUBLE TAX'

Washington—(AP)—The right of Wisconsin to tax income earned in another state was challenged today in the supreme court.

John M. Hughes of Hudson, Wis., land commissioner of the Northern Pacific railway, appealed from a decision of the Wisconsin supreme court in his effort to escape income taxation by both Wisconsin and Minnesota.

John P. Dromey, administrator of the estate of Charles Jensch, comptroller of the Chicago and North Western railway, also appealed from a decision of the same court in an effort to escape payment of an income tax on Jensch's 1934 salary. Jensch then lived in Highland Park, Ill., and Dromey contended that the income was not taxable in Wisconsin.

Hughes told the court he sought "relief from double income taxation." He contended the Wisconsin income tax collected from him under protest was "invalid as being second and double to that tax assessed and collected by the state of Minnesota upon income earned in Minnesota."

Hughes, who said he commuted to work to St. Paul from Hudson, Wis., argued that:

"Wisconsin collects on the basis of a taxation of income wherever earned by its residents; Minnesota on the basis of protection to the earning activity present in Minnesota and the legal effect given to the relationship which produced the income."

The Wisconsin court ruled that "to this extent double taxation is permitted and however objectionable, or inequitable, it may be argued to be, it cannot be upset upon constitutional, or jurisdictional, grounds."

The administrator of the Jensch estate contended Jensch formerly lived in Hudson but moved in 1929 to Highland Park. The state tax commission found, however, that in the taxable year 1934 Jensch's domicile was Hudson, although he had rented a room in Highland Park.

School Dispute Is Ended at Oregon

Board Offers Contracts to Principal and Four Teachers

Madison—(AP)—Attorney Fredrick Suter announced today the school board at Oregon, Wis., voted at a special meeting to offer contracts for the 1938-39 term to the high school principal and four teachers who had been discharged.

The board's counsel said contracts of Principal Edwin Kozlovsky, and Teachers Mary Baxter, Naomi Grimsrud, Marie Paulson and Hulda Swedberg would be renewed.

"M. J. Wischoff, director, and Louis Pease, treasurer of the school board, who had previously voted to withhold contracts from these teachers, emphasized their action yesterday was not a reversal of their previous position in these cases," Suter said. "They decided they were not justified in making the Oregon school district the proving ground for the teachers tenure law in the circuit court and supreme court of Wisconsin at the cost of heavy financial expense to members of the district."

The teachers, all of whom had earned tenure rights by more than five years service, demanded hearings to which they were entitled under the tenure law. A closed hearing was adjourned last week when Attorney William Spohn refused to proceed until the public was admitted.

One board member, Mrs. N. T. Ames, had consistently opposed dismissal, declaring the teachers were being ousted on "trumped up" charges. Complaints allegedly before the board were not announced.

A fifth teacher, Miss Nellie Smith, also was discharged last month. She did not have tenure and could not demand a hearing.

3 Dead, 10 Injured in Blast in Pennsylvania

St. Clair, Pa.—(AP)—This little mining town in the heart of Pennsylvania's anthracite region lay stunned today by the greatest tragedy in its history—a mine explosion that killed eight men and injured ten others.

Twelve-tipped miners stood on street corners with bowed heads as fathers and children arranged funerals for the men killed yesterday in the blast that rocked the St. Clair Coal company's mine.

It was the nation's second major mine disaster in less than a week. Nearly a half a hundred died in an explosion in a bituminous mine at Grundy, Va., last week.

The injured, burned so badly that physicians said three may die, were unable to tell exactly what happened.

"All of a sudden," Adam Herno-fak said from his hospital bed, "a big hole opened in the ground."

"Gas came up and boom. A big explosion, a big sheet of flame, then another big sheet of flame curling back."

Three Drown When Auto Crashes Bridge Barrier

Chicago—(AP)—Two brothers and their wives drowned early today when their automobile crashed through the barrier of an open turntable bridge during a rain storm, and plunged into the Calumet river on the far south side.

The dead were Stanley Loniewski, 34, and his wife, Pearl, 32, of Hammond, Ind., and Edward Loniewski, 28, and his wife, Adeline, Chicago.

The bodies were recovered when police and firemen raised the automobile out of 15 feet of water.

Spanish Loyalist Fleet Arrives Too Late to Engage Insurgents at Sea

Barcelona, France—(AP)—An engagement between the fleets of the insurgents and the Spanish government was narrowly avoided, it was learned today, when insurgent war vessels bombarded government land forces yesterday.

Dispatches from both sides said the insurgent war fleet, including the cruisers Canarias and Almirante Cervera, together with smaller vessels, rained shells on government land forces yesterday.

Dispatches from the government front at Albacacer said the resistance was growing stronger every hour, and that the insurgent offensive along the Albacacer-Alcala de Chivert line definitely was stopped.

Insurgents said rain drenching all eastern Spain prevented their offensive from "developing normally."

From the east, however, a new threat developed toward the government's rear.

General Jose Varella's veteran Castilians drove toward the highway from Teruel toward Valencia, aiming at the coast at Sagunto.

A successful drive would trap the government troops north of Castellon in another coastal pincer, such as that about Barcelona where government defenders have been cut off from the rest of Spain.

Japanese are Nearing Vital Lunghai Road

TRAINS ARE BOMBED
Report 400 Freight Cars
And Locomotives
Are Damaged

Shanghai—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman said today the south Shantung army had fought to within 10 miles of the Lunghai railway.

The penetration was at points between the Grand Canal and Pienhai at south of Tanchow, he said.

Earlier Japanese had claimed a "wide hole" blasted in the Japanese lines in that sector, some 50 miles east of Suichow, and that their artillery was within range of the east-west railway upon which Chinese depend for transportation to their 500-mile-long Yellow river defenses.

Japanese planes loosed cargoes of bombs on troop trains moving reinforcements along this line toward the battle zone, and reported 400 freight cars with locomotives damaged near Suichow.

At the same time the long awaited renewal of a Japanese advance north on the Tientsin-Pukow railway to meet the army fighting southward in Shantung province toward Suichow appeared underway.

Threaten Subsis

Japanese announced their troops from Pengpu after a quick advance were within "striking distance" of Subsis, in north Anhwei province. Subsis is 40 miles from Suichow, junction point of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow.

A fresh Japanese offensive also was reported underway in the far northwestern province of Suiyuan province with the capture of Anpei, 50 miles northwest of the previous Japanese advance.

Objective of this maneuver was believed to cut the ancient silk caravan routes between Outer Mongolia, under soviet Russia's influence, and China. Truck routes reportedly are now being used through this territory to carry munitions and arms to the Chinese armies.

Fight U. S. Crop Control Programs

Illinois Farmers Form
League Opposed to Agriculture Supervision

Macomb, Ill.—(AP)—Leaders of the Corn Belt Liberty league projected plans today for a nationwide agrarian revolt against federal crop control programs after enlisting the support of several hundred Illinois farmers at a mass meeting here.

The league was organized last week in Mc Donough county, Ill. Tilden Burg, president, said long time opposition to crop control crystallized in the formation of the league after corn acreage allotments were made recently.

At a rally last night a crowd estimated by Burg at 2,000 heard speakers assail crop control measures and urge resistance to them. The gathering adopted a resolution pledging opposition to the control program.

John E. Waters of Madison, Wis., an instructor in power farming in soviet Russia from 1924 to 1928, sailed the crowd control program and declared the "whole setup of the plan today is to create a dictatorship over agriculture generally."

Bob LaFollette Says 'New

Speed Program

Washington—(AP)—Senator LaFollette (R-Wis.) expressed belief in the senate today that the $1,556,546,000 naval expansion program originated with President Roosevelt and not the navy department.

Denouncing the program, LaFollette told the senate:

"I am convinced that in finding the final responsibility for promulgation of this program, we must look to the president of the United States."

The Wisconsin senator said naval officers had not asked for an expansion during frequent appearances before congressional committees in recent years. That, he asserted, was "conclusive proof" the program was not conceived by the navy department.

LaFollette said he did not believe there had been any development that would justify expanding the navy.

Assails Program

"I am forced to the conclusion that these new scares, these new boghobbs that are being shaken in the faces of the people are being used primarily to force this program through congress, and there is no justification," he declared.

There is a "growing fear" among many people, LaFollette said, that the naval expansion program might be designed to "distract attention" from domestic economic affairs.

Taking the senate floor to oppose the $1,556,546,000 naval building measure, LaFollette declared that for "seven long weary months" while the present recession was developing, business and political leaders "turned their eyes away" from the domestic situation to talk foreign affairs.

LaFollette quoted Charles A. Beard, the historian, as saying there was a tendency among politicians to increase as business activity declined, increasing the possibility of war, but diverting public attention from distressing economic conditions at home.

Points To 'Timing'

"There is a growing fear that this dangerous situation may be developed in the United States," LaFollette said.

Wind Hits Farms Near Hortonville; 80 Here Yesterday

Cooler Tonight, Fair Tomorrow Is Weather
Bureau Report

Cloudy, gusty weather prevailed in Appleton and vicinity today following rain and high wind that last night leveled trees and damaged several farm buildings west of Hortonville, and broke two telephone poles in Greenville.

Cooler tonight and fair tomorrow is the forecast issued by the Milwaukee weather bureau today.

Last night's powerful wind, striking suddenly between 8:30 and 9 o'clock, reached its greatest velocity from 10 to 15 miles north of the city. The Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported minor damage in that locality.

Five farms in the town of Hortonville west of Hortonville were swept by the high wind. A Schulz reported that the wind twisted his barn on its foundations, but that the building remained standing. Windows in the chicken house were broken. The wind caused greater damage on the Harold Collar farm, bringing down seven large trees near the house, demolishing the milk house, tipping over the brooder house, and breaking windows in buildings.

On the Edward Steinberg farm, a barn door was blown off and a tree leveled and on the John Matz farm clothesline posts were blown down. Trees were grounded on the Albert Radichel farm and windows in the chicken coop broken.

Two telephone poles were broken on Highway 76 in Greenville, disrupting traffic, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported. Another pole was snapped off on a rural line west of Black Creek. Numerous trees and limbs fell on wires, a company official said.

The wind and sudden burst of rain last evening followed a day of freakishly hot weather in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. In Milwaukee, the maximum of 80 degrees broke the all-time record for April 27, the previous high being 78 in 1888. A similar high of 80 degrees was recorded in Appleton yesterday afternoon.

At Marquette, Mich., located more than 200 miles north of Appleton on Lake Superior, the thermometer raced upward to 86 degrees. Two other places, Alpena and Pittsburgh, reported a similar reading of 86. Yellowstone and Modena were the coldest places in the nation, producing lows of 32.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the minimum in Appleton was 57. During the period the rain measured .11 of an inch.

Hearing May 12 On Dinneen Plea

Hoppmann Stays Proceedings Pending Arguments
On Habeas Corpus Writ

Madison—(AP)—Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann postponed today a federal trial proceedings against William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the state public service commission, and scheduled a hearing May 12 on a writ of habeas corpus.

The surprise move, coming a day before Dinneen was to have appeared in circuit court for assignment of a trial date, was initiated by Dinneen's attorney, Ray T. McCann, Milwaukee. The writ commanded Sheriff Lawrence O. Larson to produce Dinneen, together with books and documents in the case.

The sheriff, Dinneen, McCann and William H. Spohn, special state counsel, went before Judge Hoppmann immediately and the court issued an order staying all proceedings until arguments on the writ have been heard. Dinneen was released on his own bond.

McCann's petition stated that the complaint filed against Dinneen, accusing him of furnishing confidential information from commission files to the B. E. Buckman and Company, bankrupt securities firm, fails to state an offense and the evidence at the preliminary hearing failed to establish that an offense was committed.

Father Drowns While Saving His Son's Life

Tappanhook, Va.—(AP)—P. D. Kelly, 41, sacrificed his life to his only son, Donald, 16, tonight live.

His broken ankle was encased in a plaster cast, but Kelly plunged into the Rappahannock river and held his exhausted boy's head above water—his own submerged—until a row-boat came.

The boy's fishing line, tangled in the father's clothing, enabled searchers to find his body in 10 feet of water a short while later.

"He must have known," the boy said, "at the last that he couldn't save me and save himself, too. He caught me up and then went under."

They were fishing when the youth's line broke. Donald swam after it and tired.

Overflow Crowd of 10, 000 Seen at Madi- son Meeting

GOVERNOR SILENT
LaFollette May Not Disclose His Personal Plans

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin CIO asked Governor Philip F. LaFollette in a telegram today to declare support of the Roosevelt recovery program at his new party mass meeting tonight.

Supporting the governor's call to liberals of Wisconsin and other states for a political realignment, Gunnar Mickelsen, state CIO director, added:

"I trust the efforts of reactionaries to use your good work as a wedge to split the Progressive labor forces will be answered tonight once and for all. Our organization is standing squarely behind the Roosevelt recovery program and we look with confidence to your conference for similar support."

"We feel the need now as we know you do is unification of all forward looking people on a local and national scale."

Mickelsen expressed regret he would be unable to attend the conference.

Thousands on the governor's supporters were converging on Madison for the start of the mass meeting for the start of the mass meeting at 7:30 p. m., but up to a late hour no persons of national prominence had arrived.

Governor Elmer Benson, of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborite, designated his state budget commissioner, Paul Rasmussen, to represent him, explaining he would have to remain in Minnesota for negotiations in the Land O'Lakes strike. H. A. Berle, Adviser to President Roosevelt and assistant secretary of state, was to arrive in town today as personal representative of Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York. He was to be a guest of Governor LaFollette.

Aids to the governor, estimating an overflow crowd of possibly 10,000 in response to his radio plea for depression-routng public action, set up flood lights and erected a loudspeaking system on the grounds outside the meeting site.

The conference was removed yesterday from a smaller building to the University of Wisconsin stock pavilion, which seats 3,500.

While LaFollette has declined to comment on his address, close friends expected he would disclose the third party plan and discuss party ideas.

Some expressed the possibility he may modify his criticisms of Roosevelt administration recovery policies, in a series of radio addresses last week.

Try To Halt Attacks

At Washington mutual friends of President Roosevelt and of the governor and his brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., were said to be seeking to prevent a recurrence of further LaFollette attacks.

The governor's decision to call for new political action and new governmental approach to the economic situation was reached weeks ago in what he called "rank and file" conferences. He has invited several thousand liberals, mostly from the midwest, to his mass meeting.

A national third party has for years been the dream of the LaFollette brothers, nourished by the Progressive ideals of their late father, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr.

The brothers split with state Republicans in 1934, founding the Progressive party which captured the majority of important state offices.

Hopes For New Party

Rogers' cries for help were heard by Gilbert Reinke, 622 S. Park avenue, who notified Neenah police and then went to the rescue of Rogers in a boat.

Rogers told police he was fishing when a strong wind suddenly started. He pulled up anchor but the storm struck before he could make shore and the wind started to drive the canoe towards the west side of the lake when the craft tipped over.

Patrolman Edward Jape, accompanied by Gilbert Neff, 24 E. Columbus avenue, and Arthur Homblatte, 705 S. Commercial street, also went out after Rogers, but he had already been picked up by Reinke.

Neenah Man Saved After Strong Wind Overturns Canoe

Neenah—Ben Rogers, 604 S. Park avenue, was rescued from drowning in Lime Kiln bay, Lake Winnebago, about 8:40 last night after his canoe keeled over in a sudden squall.

Rogers' cries for help were heard by Gilbert Reinke, 622 S. Park avenue, who notified Neenah police and then went to the rescue of Rogers in a boat.

Rogers told police he was fishing when a strong wind suddenly started. He pulled up anchor but the storm struck before he could make shore and the wind started to drive the canoe towards the west side of the lake when the craft tipped over.

Patrolman Edward Jape, accompanied by Gilbert Neff, 24 E. Columbus avenue, and Arthur Homblatte, 705 S. Commercial street, also went out after Rogers, but he had already been picked up by Reinke.

Nazi Order All Jewish Fortunes Registered and Plan Ultimate Seizure

Government to Encourage Jews to Emigrate From Germany

Berlin—(AP)—Diplomats indicated today that embassies and legations of foreign powers, such as the United States embassy, were studying the decree published yesterday requiring registration of Jewish fortunes and properties in Germany.

A high authority disclosed last night that the German government planned to take over all Jewish property "in due course of time" and encourage Jews to emigrate from Germany.

This was in explanation of the decree issued by Field Marshal Hermann Goering, as director of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, requiring the registration of 500,000 Jews of greater Germany to register their fortunes if these exceed 5,000 marks ($2,000).

Jews in Germany must also register their foreign properties. Foreign Jews must list their holdings in Germany. This must be done by June 30.

One diplomat characterized the decree as "terrible" but doubted there was any basis for diplomatic action.

Quick Action Seen

Informed nazis revealed that if and when Goering decided to mobilize Jewish fortunes in the interests of the four-year plan it would be with the same energy which marks all the No. 2 nazis' decisions.

Government circles expressed confidence the "stock taking" of Jewish properties would be completed by the June 30 date.

How the Jews will be compensated when Goering calls for their money is still a puzzle to financial experts. It was suggested they might simply be handed government bonds bearing 4 1/2 per cent in face amounts equal to the funds collected.

So far as foreign holdings of German Jews are concerned, it was pointed out that all German citizens and subjects were compelled by decree to register their foreign properties.

The maximum penalty for failure to do so is death. As there are German agents abroad in nearly all countries, no Jew is likely to risk failure to report his property.

Norton Supports Wage-Hour Bill

blocked the senate-approved wage-hour bill for months. The house later shelved that measure.

The new bill eliminates provisions for different wage standards in the north and the south, and Democratic chiefs believed that change had alienated some members who favored the original legislation.

Chairman Norton said the petition method was "extremely distasteful" to her, but she added circumstances might compel her to change her mind.

President Roosevelt repeatedly urged enactment of the legislation at this session. The American Federation of Labor and Labor's Non-Partisan League, a CIO affiliate, issued statements last night approving the bill.

Present Provisions

In its present form, the bill would establish a minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents at the end of three years. It would prohibit the interstate shipment of the products of child labor and would fix the work week at 44 hours, to be decreased to 40 in two years.

The wage-hour controversy is one of the principal issues remaining before this session of congress. The president's relief and pump-priming program is expected to be ready for house consideration next week, and the senate soon may finish debate on the billion-dollar naval expansion bill.

Mr. Roosevelt's request for legislation to permit the federal government and states to tax each other's bonds and securities may be held over until next year.

Chairman Sumners (D-Texas) of the house judiciary committee said legal precedents pointed to the necessity of a constitutional amendment instead of a mere statute. He added that, "in the light of recent statements," he would study the problem further.

French, British Statesmen Meet To Face Problems

Closer Military Cooperation Indicated Between Two Powers

London—(AP)—The premiers and foreign ministers of Britain and France today plunged into a two-day effort to work out in personal conference solutions to the central European and other threats to world peace.

Alternatively they considered means of self-preservation in the event of war, and much closer cooperation of all fighting services of the two powers was expected to be a major development of the conference.

Nazi efforts to absorb Germans of Czechoslovakia in the expanded German realm loomed as an increasing danger and an urgent reason for agreement on the question of military cooperation.

A small crowd watched Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, who flew from Paris yesterday, enter the prime minister's residence in dingy Downing street.

Informed sources believed the premiers would take long range decisions in an effort to deal with German expansion. New accords for both powers with Italy would bulwark such tactics.

Try To Satisfy Reich

It was expected they also would work directly with the leaders of Czechoslovakia in an effort to get them to satisfy Germany. Other possibilities for discussion were propping up countries like Yugoslavia and Hungary economically to enable them to resist nazi hegemony.

One version of the search for military cooperation was that the fighting services of the two powers would be so closely knit that neither could go to war without the other.

The British and French air, army and navy staffs already are working together on technical matters, and British Prime Minister Chamberlain and French Premier Daladier were in position today to add finishing touches to the plan of closely coordinated military activities.

A German official of cabinet rank said in Berlin last night that the 3,500,000 Germans resident in Czechoslovakia soon would demand "inevitable" union with Germany.

France is pledged by alliance to aid Czechoslovakia if that nation be attacked, and Premier Daladier is anxious to ascertain how far Britain might go in the event of open hostility between Germany and Czechoslovakia over the German minority question.

Ford Thinks President Is 'Trying to Do Best He Can'

New York—(AP)—Henry Ford, fresh from his White House conference with President Roosevelt, told interviewers today the president "is trying to do the best he can like everybody else."

The remark was prompted when someone commented that Ford had never appeared to be in such a genial mood. Was it because he came away from the White House with new optimism?

"Well, you never heard me say anything about the president, did you?" the automobile manufacturer smiled. "What's the use? He's trying to do the best he can like everybody else."

But of the conference itself Ford would say nothing. Conditions generally are going to change, he said, and change for the better. And, he said, he doubts if there will be war in Europe in spite of gloomy dispatches from abroad.

Ford was asked about a report he favored Vice President John Nance Garner for the 1940 Democratic nomination. He declined to comment. He said a printed report to that effect was untrue.

Washington—(AP)—Administration officials, silent about President Roosevelt's "family luncheon" conference with Henry Ford, undertook today to arrange an early meeting of 16 big business men who have promised their aid in establishing economic stability.

The negotiations were being made by Secretary Roper and John W. Hanes, who conceived their pledge of cooperation with the president.

The extent to which similar cooperation might be forthcoming from Ford remained undisclosed after his two-hour conversation in the cream-tinted oval dining room of the White House.

"The country is all right and all-ways will be all right," the 74-year-old auto manufacturer told reporters.

He declined comment on the president's spending-leading program or

GOVERNOR FORGETS POLITICS

Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin whose call for a meeting of liberals has been interpreted as a signal for possible formation of a third political party, is shown here in the basement of his Madison, Wis., home setting a few pointers on construction from his son, Robert Marion LaFollette III. The boy was named after his famous grandfather, long a political figure in Wisconsin and the nation.

Calumet Park Officials Set Aside 7 Acres Land For Forestation Projects

Chilton—The Calumet county park officials, in conjunction with the county agent's office, has set aside 7 acres of land to be used for the 4-H clubs and rural school forestry projects in the new Calumet county park, on Lake Winnebago near Stockbridge.

Supervisors A. N. Hertel, Chilton town, William Koch, town of Brothertown, and Charles Malby, Stockbridge, in continuing their plans for the development of the park, decided that perhaps one of the best uses that could be made of some of this land to serve as a nucleus for the education of the coming generation in not only how to restore our dwindling forests, but also to acquire a genuine interest and knowledge of forestry practices.

More than 2,000 trees will be planted in the park this spring. The trees are furnished by the conservation department at Madison to various group organizations in the county. The Stockbridge American Legion auxiliary is planting 300, and the Chilton unit also is planning to plant trees in this park.

The Smith-Hughes boys of the Chilton High school have agreed to plant trees in the park, as have several of the 4-H clubs.

So far this year, in the neighborhood of 1,200 seedling trees as furnished by the conservation department are being planted on farms for windbreak purposes and in woodlots for the restoration of trees in these lots.

The women's bowling leagues of this city closed the season Monday with a dinner at Pfeiffer's restaurant, and the final contests afterward.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jansen and Mrs. Elizabeth McHugh were at Plymouth Sunday to attend the celebration of the fifty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Minch. Mrs. Minch is a sister of Mrs. McHugh, and was a former resident of Chilton.

Mrs. Thomas Flatley, Mrs. Luke Owens and Mrs. John Moehn were dinner guests Tuesday evening at the Hugh Flatley home in Stockbridge, in honor of the confirmation of Bernard and James Flatley, sons of Hugh Flatley and grandsons of Mrs. Thomas Flatley. The confirmation took place in St. Mary's church in Stockbridge on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Laughlin, Mrs. Leo J. Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McHugh and Miss Addie O'Rourke were at Manitowish Sunday to attend a party at the Ray Harlow home in honor of his birthday. Mr. Harlow was a former resident of Chilton.

Mrs. Edward Bonk was hostess to her bridge club Tuesday afternoon, high scores being made by Mrs. Ernest Willette and Mrs. Peter Jansen.

Mrs. Arthur Pomranke was hostess to the Ladies' Aid society Wednesday afternoon. The next meeting of the society will be at the home of Mrs. Philip Roll on May 11.

Louis Youngbeck, who has made this city his home for the last 20 years, will leave early next week to make his home in Milwaukee.

ginia said simply the proposal would bring the Negro into our southern churches.

Unification advocates included bishop John M. Moore, presiding today who said "the racial question is not involved."

The address continued: "In 1936 sessions, 25 of our 38 annual conferences in the United States adopted resolutions expressing their desire to vote in the 1937 sessions and asked the bishops to formulate the common question as it should be put before the annual conferences."

Votes Are Read

"The bishops do not submit the plan to the annual conferences. They submitted only a common formula of the question to be voted upon."

Votes of the individual conferences were read, showing 7,650 ayes, and 1,247 noes and the address pointed out the affirmative vote was about 86 per cent of the total vote cast.

Bishops Denny and Candler in their dissenting opinion said: "We cannot subscribe to those portions of the address which indicate that this general conference forces of America, just as the Progressive party has defeated the reactionary forces of Wisconsin."

As the hour for the mass meeting approached there was no official assurance it will disclose the governor's personal plans.

His address and the reaction of his hearers will hold the ultimate answer to one question which has aroused as much speculation in state politics as the new party drive evoked in national circles; that is, whether he will seek reelection as a fourth term candidate or retire to devote all his attention to organizational work.

His decision may or may not be announced tonight.

WANTS BROTHER PROGRAM

Washington—(AP)—Governor Philip LaFollette's meeting of liberals at Madison, Wis., resulted from his belief that neither of the old parties can carry out an adequate program of social reform, friends of the governor said today.

These persons said that any third party which may develop from the meeting would be designed to consolidate liberals behind a broader social program than that advanced by the Roosevelt administration.

The projected third party, they said, might start in the midwest and expand gradually to other sections. Governor LaFollette was described as believing a new party should be built through individual state organizations rather than through any initial national program.

Representative O'Connell, (D-Mont.), who recently said liberals would be wise to renominate President Roosevelt if the Democrats do not, telegraphed LaFollette:

Telegram to Phil

"Now is the time when progressives need to unite for the passage of recovery and wage-and-hour legislation, and for victory, in the 1938 elections."

President Roosevelt is known to have expressed privately considerable interest in the conference. He raised no objection to attendance by one of his chief lieutenants, Adolf Berle, assistant secretary of state. Berle told reporters he was not going as an administration observer, but as an old friend of Governor LaFollette.

Some of those who are trying to keep the LaFollette and Mr. Roosevelt on good terms agree that a national political realignment is probable by 1940, but they want it to come through a purge of conservatives within the Democratic party and not by organization of a third party.

Should the president seek a third term, they say, his logical running mate might be Senator LaFollette.

SEES REALIGNMENT

St. Louis—(AP)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York said yesterday he thought there would be a political realignment, rather than a third party, by 1940.

The division on economic issues will bring a coalition of all "progressive forces," he asserted in an interview. It won't be important, he added, whether present party labels are maintained or new ones created.

LaGuardia merely said, "It's all right," when asked his opinion of the meeting of "liberals" called by Governor Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin.

He added that Prof. A. A. Berle, assistant secretary of state of New York state, would represent him at the meeting at Madison, Wis., today.

200 Students Attend Peaceful Meeting on National Peace Day

A crowd of about 200 Lawrence college students celebrated National Peace Day in quiet fashion yesterday, gathering at noon in front of Main hall to hear Professor Donald M. DuShane, Professor Richard Cummings, and the Rev. William J. Spicer talk on peace.

Cliff Burton, Appleton presided at the meeting.

DuShane described the viewpoints on peace that are held by four persons, the campus "red," the professor, and ordinary student, and the idealist.

Professor Cummings, commending the student for their interest in peace, said he was gratified to see that their demonstration itself was "peaceful and thoughtful." He declared that "until man respects man, wars will continue."

The Rev. Mr. Spicer pointed out to the students that by learning to keep amicable relations at home, in the fraternity and sorority, and on the campus, they may do much towards strengthening the chances for permanent peace in world affairs.

Society Probes Killing Of Shark by Fisherman

London—(AP)—The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is investigating whether the Weymouth fisherman who killed a monster shark Monday with his pocketknife should be held in court.

An R. S. P. C. A. inspector obtained a formal statement from Frederick Farn on just how he slew the 30-foot fish, but the fisherman refused to sign the document.

An R. S. P. C. A. official explained that if Farn killed the shark while it was imprisoned in a net—as first accounts said he did—then he would come under the jurisdiction of the society.

Badgers Favor Proposal to End Tax Exemptions

Wisconsin Legislators Support President's Recommendations

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Washington—The Wisconsin delegation supports the president's proposal to end the exemptions from income taxation of the salaries of state, local, and federal employees, and the income from federal employees, and the income from federal, state, municipal, county, and other local bonds and other securities.
Under court decisions, the federal government cannot tax the salaries of state and local employees or the income derived from state and local securities, while the state cannot tax salaries of federal employees or the income from federal securities.
Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Progressive, Madison has long advocated abolition of these exemptions, and has expressed the conviction that, if the supreme court should be given another chance to act upon the question, it might reverse its former decisions, which were based upon an 1838 decision, preceding the sixteenth amendment with its authorization of taxes on income "from whatever source derived."
"Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat, Fond du Lac, commented: "I fully endorse the recommendations of President Roosevelt as contained in his message to congress."
"The sixteenth amendment, properly construed, authorizes the federal government to tax income from state and municipal securities and salaries, and the state should have the right to tax income from federal bonds and salaries."
"This would increase Wisconsin's income from its state income tax, and would require payment of federal income tax by its state and local employees and the income from state and local securities."

COMMITTEE MEETING
The judiciary committee of the common council will meet at 7 o'clock Friday evening in city hall. Several claims filed at the last meeting of the council will be considered.

Perennials Need Year's Growth Before Blooming

A few perennials can be started early indoors and will bloom the first year, but most of them need a year's growth before they flower. They may be started in mid-summer, but will do better if started earlier in May or June. This gives them a chance to develop through the tender stage in weather that is not too dry and hot, and they are thus better able to carry through the season to transplanting time in the fall, and the mortality is lessened.

Take a secluded and protected spot in the vegetable garden for a seedbed. Be as careful about preparing the soil as if it were to be put in a flat. Plant perennials in rows, like vegetables, labelling each row. Thin out carefully to the proper distances apart in the rows.

No perennial border can be without the tall delphiniums and hollyhocks. They form the mainstay of tall colorful subjects in the garden.

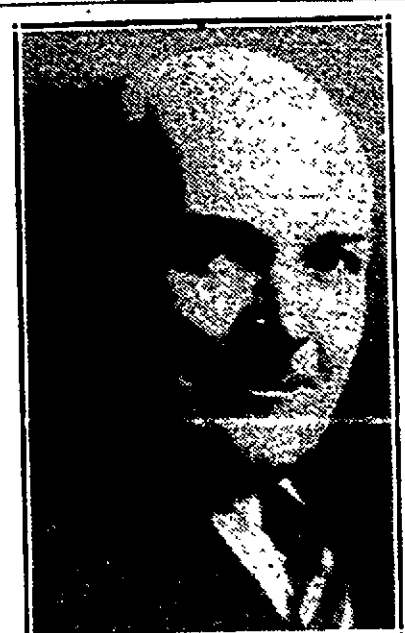

Pyrethrums are one of the finest of cutting materials, the long-stemmed daisies, sometimes growing 3 feet tall, keeping for days when cut. They range in color from pure white to palest pinks, rose, maroon, and crimson. The dark shades are the rarest and a packet of seed will give a prevailing number of light tones. To get a good strain of pyrethrums it is necessary, first of all to buy a good strain of seed from a reliable seedsmen.

It is usually necessary to grow a larger number of plants than you really need and select the best. But a packet of seeds will produce scores of plants, so this is no great item of expense. Select carefully; there will usually be a large number of plants with washed-out coloring. Select those of clear color and throw away the inferior ones.

Columbines do not need this selection, as they show a wide diversity in size or form if the seed is from a good strain. There are fine named types that come fairly true from seed. You may select the color you like in columbines, but it is one perennial which, because of its soft coloring, is as effective in mixed coloring as grown in separate colors. It is best in shade, but will grow well in full sun. Set plants a foot apart for mass of bloom.

Treat Seed Potatoes

New London — Approximately 100 bushels of seed potatoes were treated for scab and scurf, potato diseases, by the agricultural classes at the New London high school at the farm shop in the Lincoln school building Tuesday.

Boys of the classes and many farmers of this vicinity brought their seed potatoes for an acid-mercury treatment. The potatoes were treated by soaking in barrels containing the disease-killing solution. Farmers assisted the boys under the direction of L. M. Warner, instructor. Part of the work was carried on outdoors.

New London — New London baseball fans will get an opportunity for a pre-season view of the Miller High Life club in action when the New London team will entertain the Neenah Northern Valley league club in a practice game at the city ball park here Sunday afternoon. It was announced yesterday by Ralph Impelman, business manager of the local squad. There will be no admission charge.

The visiting team, managed by Bill Handler, has been champion of the Northern Valley circuit the last two years. The New London club has been working out each evening in preparation for the season's activities with the Northern Valley league which begins May 8. Manager L. J. Ivan Becker, dependable hurler of last year, has been advised by physicians to lay off the game for a time and it is doubtful whether his services will be available.

Dan Meshnick has been following the activities of the High Life but hasn't made up his mind yet whether he will do one of the new uniforms or not. He was scheduled to play with Dale Sunday afternoon but his services aren't contracted by them.

Two new prospective outside players will be present Sunday according to Manager Polaski. Phil Palmer of Seymour, who played with New London last year, and Hunter Lake, Appleton, who performed at work after the river aggregation several years ago.

Sunday's game is planned to start about 2:30 in the afternoon.

Kiwanians Hear Address on Italy

Manitowoc Man Discusses Regeneration Under Fascism

Chilton — The Chilton Kiwanis club held its annual ladies' night at Hotel Chilton Tuesday evening. Milton Detjen of Manitowoc was the guest speaker. He is a student of music and returned recently from a two years study of music in Italy. He traveled extensively throughout Italy and gave an account of many historical, architectural and scenic features of Italy. He told of how the Italian people are regimented under the fascism of Mussolini, saying the very atmosphere is saturated with militarism. Mussolini boasts that with a few hours notice 8,000,000 trained soldiers will take the field. Italy boasts that she has no unemployment, such as now afflicts this country but, the speaker pointed out, all of the unemployed are put into the army.

Beginning at the age of 12 the boys are taught to live in an air of military preparation. Women, too, are an active part of the military setup. Prizes of the value of $50 are offered by Mussolini to Italian mothers for each baby born beyond the twelfth. Prices paid in Italy for the necessities of life are so high that it is hard for the masses to make a living, Mr. Detjen said. Gasoline is 65 cents per gallon, and has been as high as $1. The people have no money for luxuries. The city of Milwaukee has more automobiles than all of Italy. The theaters are crowded, but generally are so poorly ventilated that it is hard for fresh air enthusiasts to stand the strain. If one would appreciate the advantages of life in the U.S.A., he should spend a few months among the Italian people, where individual liberty and economic opportunity are subordinated to the spirit of militarism, which dominates every phase of human life, the speaker declared.

WISCONSIN NEEDS MORE CONCRETE ROADS

No Need for Danger Signs on A MODERN CONCRETE ROAD

Concrete pavements, built to the standards developed by highway engineers of this state, are the last word in safety. Yet they actually cost the public less than so-called "cheap" pavements. Concrete is safe because it provides a better "track" for vehicles. From your own experience you know that its even, gritty surface reduces skidding, wet weather or dry. Its freedom from bumps, ruts and chuckholes gives you better control at the wheel. Concrete's light gray color and high reflection factor helps you see better at night. Yet, with all these advantages, concrete is actually the cheapest road to have. First, because it costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. Second, because concrete costs less to maintain—saves hundreds of dollars per mile, every year, compared with less enduring surfaces. Urge public officials to build your roads with safe and saving concrete.

"PRINCIPLES" OF THE NEW PARTY

With almost boyish and yet understandable enthusiasm the mentors of the new political party are talking about the great principles that will underlie it and that therefore must be agreed upon in solemn conclave and submitted to the people for approval or rejection.

It is not the voice of a cynic that may be raised to jar the people out of any lethargy into which high-sounding principles may encompass them. But may, one timidly ask: What are principles and what are promises in our political life today?

If we find a political party that says "We promise economy of public funds" you may see that party if successful at the polls the most wasteful and extravagant any nation this wide world over has ever known. If it says, "We will reduce the great number now eating at the public trough" you may observe that when it gains power it will add 300,000 more to the public payrolls at an expense of over a billion dollars a year to the people. If it says, "We promise you sound money upon a basis of gold," you may be staggered to see the gold withdrawn and the "sound money" diluted by paying for Mexican silver at $1.29 an ounce when it can be bought in Nevada for half that.

Some writers attribute the advancement of human progress and the march of civilization to the fact that men have memories which bring before them constantly pictures of their past errors. Yet in relation to political promises, at least those made in the last six years, it would be a blessing if the people could forget. For, insofar as keeping faith with the pledged word is concerned, it would be difficult to find public honor at a lower ebb in our history.

That is not necessarily a fling at the LaFollettes although they participated energetically in scrapping all the major promises the Democratic party made to the people. They may reason that the duty of keeping faith with the public belongs to the leader, and in a larger sense that is true. But certainly they must realize that the standards in the political life of America must never get as low as those advanced by Japan, Russia, Germany and Italy in respect to their relations with others. Dependability in political parties and political leaders is now at a sub-normal stage. But a warning is in the air. It may be found in the deep revulsion of feeling sweeping over the land at the misconduct of its rulers, their inordinate vanity and scrambling after bouquets to tie in their buttonholes while millions are out of work due to their broken words.

It remains for the next successful party in the American political scheme to try to return the country to the standards of its fathers, to the faith of the horse and buggy days instead of the broken promises of the gilt and glamor era.

The LaFollettes may read advantageously a strong statement made by Mr. Eddy, President of Hobart College:

"The hypnotic use of words by all political groups to lull the reader into a coma, and screen the issue, appears on all sides. If this prostitution of thought to vocabulary goes on apace, the time will come when men must stop reading at all if they are to keep their heads on their shoulders and their feet on the ground."

All of which may be interpreted to mean that if we are to have party principles let them be written in honesty and upheld in honor.

JUVENILE KILLERS

The judge at Chicago who hanged the case of young Danielson, 16 years of age, on trial for killing his mother, faced one of the most difficult and trying problems in human relations, that of accounting for shocking crime committed by a youngster and then disposing of the case adequately both for the youngster and the public.

The Danielson case was written around the word "rage." It involved a mother whose anger knew no bounds although provoked only by some childish delinquency. It was reflected in a son who matched rage with rage.

The true story of rage belongs in reality to Dante and his Inferno, while it would take another artist like Dore to depict the woe and misery to which all are subjected who throw complete control over their feelings to the winds.

The trial of Danielson was in contrast to most court contests. No one present was trying to win a decision so much as he was attempting to solve the knotty problems of where justice lay in the case.

Disinterested medical advice said, "The tragedy was the result of rage which mounted to furor and then to mania."

Yet it may be questioned whether the punishment of 14 years in prison upon the judge's determination that the boy was guilty of murder is anything more than a short respite, protecting the public for a little while from one whose disappointment or nursing anger may so readily mount to mania.

It is hard to handle cases of this sort because the feeling for the youth is likely to overflow and blind the jurist in considering the future that both youth and the public must face.

THE MIRACLE OF INSTINCT

Before a lighthouse off the coast of Wales during the seasonal migrations of birds countless wrens are found dead. Before another light not far away no birds at all are found.

A repetition of this singular occurrence in other spots has brought the conclusion that these migrants, back from overseas, adhere closely to ancient lanes of travel, what observers have termed "long walls in the air."

This unusual destruction is said to be the result of the fact that most migrants choose the night for travel and are so intent upon the course they take that light rising in their path bewilders but does not affect their flight.

Capistrano, out in California, adds to the sum total in respect to the flight of swallows its annual story of punctuality as certain as the sun. The record at Capistrano has been kept accurately for 60 years but before that it existed in haphazard form for another hundred years.

The swallows return on the 19th of March from their winter rendezvous which is said to be in South America or the South Sea Islands. As nearly as they can be counted there will be a vanguard of about 250 birds come zooming over the mission garden precisely at 5:45 A. M. of that day. Larger flocks will arrive later in the day. So mystifying and intriguing has become this hallowed tradition that hundreds of people gather before the locked gates and the vine-covered mission walls each March 19th to witness what they call the "Miracle of the Birds."

Nor are these feathered friends entirely without an appreciation of the drama they are unfolding. Arrived at their place of abode they dip low as in salute and wing their way through the arches adjacent to the garden.

These swallows are just as punctual in their leaving. They start on their trip southward on October 23, a small number of scouts going out first and the rest following during the day as if their military orders had been written and precision had been drilled into them all their lives.

Here, of course, is an earthly miracle, the miracle of the wrens in Wales that follow a certain lane with such uncanny accuracy that many fall in death before anything erected in that lane, and the California swallows that come and go as though they were the makers themselves of the calendar.

Perhaps the human race should not be turned aside to witness miracles such as these. Perhaps they only confuse our in-born but stumbling efforts to understand the miracles of which we ourselves are an active part. And yet, maybe, the detached or somewhat aloof spirit in which man may view and study the amazing actions and results of what he calls instinct in others may bring him to a better understanding or at least a more sympathetic and tolerant view of himself, the most amazing of all God's complicated creatures.

Opinions Of Others

ROOSEVELT AND FORD

In the difference between the president's conception of government's function with relation to business, and that of the business community, there is probably something fundamental which will forever keep them from seeing alike. Unquestionably it has been deepened and widened by the proneness of each to address the other from a distance, and then not directly but by way of some third party, the newspaper reader or radio audience.

It has been carried on in the language of allusion and asides, a manner of controversy in which each contends, with considerable justification, that it has been unfairly treated. The president has talked vaguely of the "fishy few," "economic royalists" and the various synonyms therefor. Business has charged the president with destroying confidence by the implicit hostility of his administration toward the business community.

Plainly, there can be no understanding, or even an understanding of the other's point of view, until they communicate at shorter range, in specific terms. If government and industry are so far apart in social and economic convention that their disparity bears on the general welfare, the responsible heads of both can do no less than meet and try to adjust their difference to some system of mutual accommodation.

The Ford Motor company typifies a considerable slice of American private enterprise. Out of a meeting of Mr. Ford and the president a great deal can grow of instruction to both. It is evident that the president, by preference or otherwise, is innocent of knowing much about the circumstances in which industry today must function. On this point, his seeming unawareness of the weight his slightest word can carry in its effect, for good or ill, on business is cited by his critics. For his part, he feels that business deliberately misunderstands his purpose.

To cure the first, and to clear up the second, it seems obvious the two must meet and speak directly. The Ford conversation is the first of what ought to be a continuing series.

THEY tell me that the carnage and slaughter was something horrible to see and that memories of it haunt the dreams of people who were in the vicinity. Anyway, I wasn't there and I am glad for my absence. I refer to the Battle of Flanders which I understood was held on East College Avenue Tuesday night when approximately 3,000 people, trying to attend the two events within a block and a half of each other, tried to park and tried to get out and go home. Recalling what happens when Saturday night rolls around on College Avenue, I am glad that I did not witness the battle. I can take Times Square on a busy night in stride; I can cope with Randolph and Wabash at rush hours. When College Avenue gets slap happy, however, it's too much. The Battle of the Flanders is an example.

I'D FEEL TERRIBLE, JUST TERRIBLE

Jonah:

How would you feel if you had built the little woman a new nest to the tune of ten thousand berries and woke up some fine morning and realized that you didn't have a blade of grass around the place or a sign of dandelion and it was almost the first of May?

All of a sudden you got a little panicky and hiked down to the library and asked for some dope on assorted greenery. They gave you an armful of books about gardens and shrubs, posies and vegetables and pools and pansies.

It was too much for you and in a little while your head began to reel and all you could see was a Spring montage like a movie.

Suddenly you heard a voice behind you asking, "Are you making a garden?" You looked up in a daze and said, "I just want to plant a couple of evergreens."

The guy behind you seemed to know what it was all about and found you two swell books and a magazine article and told you where to buy the stuff.

You thanked him and rushed home to the missus with all your dope. You were so excited that you crossed the lot ankle deep through the clay, flung open the door and said, "Darling, we're going to have a show place!"

And she said, "That's O.K. with me, but it is getting late and you had better get in here and eat your spinach."

—EARL E. RISER

It's things like this that make me feel so very humble. Here I go and plant a row of beets, two rows of onions, a row of carrots, one of parsley and some stuff the little woman says is good but sounds terrible. I bring myself around to cutting the grass. I figure out how to pay next month's rent.

And then I get a letter like this.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE STARS ARE BIRTHDAY CANDLES

The stars are birthday candles
For children who dropped through
The open door of Heaven,
Gaily, as children do.

The angels light the candles,
And while we dream about
That small unrumpled cradle,
The children blow them out.

The stars are birthday candles,
And one bright ring of seven
Is burning for a little boy
Who celebrates in Heaven.

TAKING THE WRONG CRITTER TO THE SOAP FACTORY

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

RABIES SCARE

Every so often the health department works up a rabies scare, not to create a demand for Pasteur treatment or "serum," but mainly to gain publicity for the health department, the health officer or his work, with a shrewd purpose behind it all, namely, to obtain larger appropriations or to prevent a cut in the generous appropriations now being made for the conduct of the manifold activities of the health department.

Some of these activities amount practically to the practice of medicine and come under health department scope only because the politician holding down the job of health officer feels he must identify himself with every possible matter that has the slightest relation to health in order to hold his political standing.

A medical colleague who evidently believes in Santa Claus and the stork sends me a newspaper clipping emanating from the health department. The item briefly mentions the death of a man from rabies. With it is another clipping telling of the death of a second man from rabies. Both men, the newspaper item says, had been bitten by a dog that had rabies. The dog had bitten nine persons in all—seven of them received Pasteur treatment at once and all are still living and well. These two men did not receive Pasteur treatment. They are dead of rabies.

Could anything be more convincing? My medical friends ask whether these two cases do not cause me to alter my view and opinion as to the cause of hydrophobia (falso) he is a physician he seems to like that word "hydrophobia", and its specific treatment. If it does so influence me, the medical colleague suggests, it would seem in order for me to take my readers into my confidence and advise them properly, in case any of them should ever be bitten by a rabid dog.

If I were bitten by a dog presumably suffering with rabies I should by no means take Pasteur treatment. I honestly fear Pasteur virus causes some of the grave effects the health authorities and some doctors ascribe to rabies in man. Instead I should want the wound immediately disinfected and dressed by a competent physician, and I should want an immediate injection of anti-tetanus serum, by way of prophylaxis against possible lockjaw infection. Thereafter I should treat the wound as one would any wound of like degree. After a week I'd want a second injection of anti-tetanus serum. Then I'd forget it.

This is the conscientious conviction I have reached after thirty-five years' study of the rabies question.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Hernia Cured

Last summer, following your advice, I had ambulant treatment for a hernia of eight years standing. The doctor allowed me to remove the truss finally in October. No sign of trouble since. Thank you very much. (F. B.)

How about doing the belly breathing exercise to restore tone to the muscles which had become weakened by my "favoring" the hernia all those years? (F. B.)

Answer—Better ask the doctor who treated you. Incidentally, it is almost pleasant for me to receive such a message as provided you divulge to me the name of the doctor—as it is for a doctor himself.

Three Times and Through
Thank you sincerely for your booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene." At first I was highly skeptical but later I read it over more carefully, and finally a third reading of the first half. Then I began to think—I am forever through with physic. (S. J. B.)

Answer—That's just what all the average gink, who learns to read but not to think. For a copy of the booklet send ten cents and a three-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address. Envelope must be standard size, not less than 3 1/2 by 6 inches.

Psoriasis
Following your suggestion we began giving our children a daily ration of 3,000 to 6,000 units of vitamin D to supplement their regular diet, prevent caries and maintain immunity against rickets. We are happy to report that both of them now have smooth, clear skins—they were both subject to a dry, cracking scaly state of the skin doctors called psoriasis. (M. S.)

Answer—Physicians are treating severe chronic psoriasis successfully with massive doses of vitamin D, the same treatment as for chronic arthritis.

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"

If April 29 is your birthday, the best hours for this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.; from 2:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m.; from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

You may have occasion to make good use of your imagination this day. The best results will come through creative thought. Unless you are very observant you may miss an opportunity to save money this day. Hardness of heart will wear many a person's conscience, so under no condition be callous when you ought to be sympathetic or forgiving. Letters written in haste this day are liable to be decidedly ambiguous. Forgetfulness will be responsible for many postponed or neglected. Fair play must be used. If a discordant condition is to be avoided. Do not let personal likes or dislikes sway your opinion for prejudice is likely to cause trouble this day. Harsh tones and abrupt replies also might bring about a great deal of distress, particularly in family circles. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are in love, must be careful this day to say or do nothing that has the slightest chance of having an unpleasant sequence.

If a woman and April 29 is your birthday, you probably work in a methodical manner, and are annoyed by disorder. You perhaps love to be admired, and may be just a little vain. You really believe in practicing what you preach, so you cannot afford to do too much sermonizing or moralizing. If you do not wish people to be unduly critical about what you say or do, you ought to be a good dancer, and a very entertaining conversationalist. Flowers and music should have a very soothing influence, especially if you are tired or inclined to be discouraged. Though trained nursing, selling, acting, singing, writing, or some line of work requiring your contacting the public, you may become financially independent. Marriage apparently has far more to give you in the way of freedom from worry and a craving for companionship and love, than anything a career or profession can offer.

The child born on April 29, must be taught that plutony is a hard master, exacting a high price for the temporary pleasures it has to offer. This youngster must learn not to overexert itself, or to undertake more than it can handle.

If a man and April 29 is your natal day, faith in yourself and optimism will enable you to face all kinds of odds, and emerge victorious. As an inventor, explorer, theatrical producer, musician, engineer, lawyer, politician or broker your future prospects appear to be very promising.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York — Somebody surely must be wrong. Somebody must have their dates, or their writers, or their something, mixed. I was thinking of Ernest Hemingway, and Jed Harris, and the new magazine Ken.

In the first issue of Ken Mr. Hemingway writes an article about his favorite subject, the Loyalist cause in Spain. After publishing the piece, the editors, in a little aside to the reader, say: We would like to have Mr. Hemingway become one of our editors, if our editorial opinions do not come into too much conflict. We don't know whether he will become one of our editors or not, for he has been in Spain ever since this magazine was first conceived. But whether or no he will continue as one of our contributors until he quits or is fired! Now let's go back three or five weeks, to an afternoon last February, in an office on Broadway. Mr. Jed Harris, the producer, is facing this correspondent across a wide desk. He has just come in off a junket from the deep south, and his bags are still unpacked.

He says: "I've been hunting and fishing with Ernest Hemingway down in Florida. We had a great time and I dined him with my marksmanship. We also discussed his new play, 'The Fifth Column,' which I may produce. I think he really has something there. Then I came back to New York."

Like Cleek, the man of 40 faces, nobody can get together on his exact whereabouts. Whither, Mr. Hemingway, Spain or the Everglades?

There is something hilariously cheering in seeing old Pearl White thrillers of 20 years ago, and the villains with curled mustaches, emitting silent but cruel "Ha's" whenever the fragile heroine hove into sight. The Hotel New Yorker has begun a series of revivals for dinner guests and show several of these ancient movies each week. I am a sucker for the early film adventures of Helen Holmes, leaping off trains, and of Ruth Roland, who faced a thousand deaths every Sunday night in the old serials, each episode ending with the iron claw clutching at her throat, or the hero hurling—so you thought—her horrible death in the abyss below.

Jimmy Dorsey I like too, and his music I like better. . . I am not waving a flag for the New Yorker but with an ingenious eye show, early Wallace Reid movies, and Dorsey's music all thrown in for a single dinner ticket—somebody deserves a nice hand.

Meanwhile, Mr. C. W. Dayhoff, of TWA, weighs in with what seems to me a legitimate complaint. "I will be okay with us if the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Public Works Administration want to quit using their initials, TVA and PWA," he writes. "Every time something happens the phones start

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—It may ease your mind to learn that the question, whether it is all right for the government to spend money for this and that, is a matter of relativity.

Example: Administrator Hopkins of WPA was testifying before the Senate unemployment committee when Senator Lodge held up a WPA publication entitled "America Spreads Her Wings." It had to do with airports.

"That," said Lodge, "is beautifully printed. Mr. Williams tells me that this cost $10,000." Further, he said, "that would give work to 230 workers. Do you call that administration expense?"

Said Hopkins: "In terms of the five or six billion dollars we spent, it would not amount to much."

Farley Slipping?

Interior Department is chortling these days. The hired hands there credit their chief with outguessing James A. Farley, the super-super political guesser who called the turn in 1936 right down to Maine and Vermont. The interior story has it that Farley advised the President that the Kelly-Nash organization had the Illinois primary "in the bag." Interior's Harold Ickes, however, told the President to put his nickels on the organization of letters before him and as the Senator signs each one, he pulls it off to expose a new one.

A big moment in the life of a Senator is when he can have his secretary bring to the floor of the Senate a huge stack of letters for him to sign in the presence of other Senators and an admiring gallery. A secretary puts the stack of letters before him and as the Senator signs each one, he pulls it off to expose a new one.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan does it occasionally, but our favorite letter-signer-in-public is McKellar of Tennessee. He signs "Kenneth McKellar" in great sweeping two-inch up and down strokes that spread the name over half a page. It is truly magnificent.

Press Adventure

Hanging in the White House press room is a colored photograph of a section of the Olympic peninsula in Washington (state of) which recently has been set aside as a primitive area. Last fall on his western trip the President visited the area followed by a squad of reporters who bounced unhappily through rain over the immature road they traveled. In recollection of that the picture was inscribed by the President: "To my boys—in memory of their heroic efforts and uncomplaining courage, Sept. 30, 1937."

Diplomatic note: To us from a good source has come this story—

Representatives of the Chinese and Japanese embassies met quite by accident in the outer office of a munitions manufacturer in New York.

Politely they smiled, then one said: "Well, I guess we both know what we are here for." Both did. Next result was a hasty agreement on what they would pay for their needs. The agreement, said our informant, brought a 20 per cent reduction in munitions prices.

'Ghost House' Alarms

London Suburb People

London—(4)—A "ghost house" complete with practically all the noises except clanking chains, has some of the more superstitious residents of a London suburb alarmed.

Furniture has been overturned and crockery moved from kitchen table to floor, according to reports, to the accompaniment of tapping noises and long drawn-out moans.

Many persons have taken to a priest to be called to exorcise the place. But an authoress who has become interested in the case thinks this should only be tried as a last resort. She suggests the residents of the house try to communicate with the "spirit."

Tampa WPA Deal Looks Pretty Raw to Pegler

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Tampa, Fla.—The politicians of the WPA have just got away with something in Tampa which is so raw that it is not a matter of record you might not believe it could happen even in the United States. A WPA employee served as foreman of a local grand jury which indicted nine politicians, all city and county officials, in connection with the traditional spring anti-gambling crusade. He was promptly fired from his WPA job on the ground of "no dough." He smelled a rat and reported his disposal to the court immediately. Within two hours the head of the local WPA office reinstated him without explaining where he had suddenly raised the money for a salary which had been lopped off so short a time before.

The local court thought this looked like political intimidation of a grand jury after it had been dismissed, so the new grand jury began an investigation. There is a WPA man on the new grand jury, too, and it might cramp a grand jury's style to reflect that a member of a previous grand jury had lost his WPA job after bringing in indictments against politicians.

The new grand jury summoned R. J. Dill, the state administrator of the WPA, and he refused to discuss the case on the ground that a state agency has no right to investigate a federal agency. He cited a letter from Harry Hopkins authorizing sub-chiefs of the WPA to release ballyhoo without restriction, but forbidding them to testify in regard to matters of an official or confidential character. The WPA protects its secrets. If it should accumulate felonious secrets it can protect them, too.

Mr. Dill was cited before the local court and the local United States attorney won a decision for him based on federal statutes and decisions of the federal supreme court.

So now grand juries have no protection from the political machine which represents the New Deal in Florida. If a grand juror has a WPA job he may lose it. If he is a contractor or is engaged in any line of business which is controlled or touched by any federal agency the politicians of that federal agency can ruin him. If he even works for a firm which is beholden to a federal agency for favors or for its fundamental rights his boss may be forced to fire him or take the consequences.

One Of Men Indicted Is Former WPA Boss
The moral effect of this decision on future grand juries in cases involving politicians or their friends need not be speculated upon.

In this case one of the indicted is J. R. McLeod, the sheriff, who formerly had charge of the WPA in Tampa. He succeeded Dill, the present state boss, when Dill was promoted to his new powers and immunities. Later on McLeod was appointed sheriff, and now a WPA man has had the gall to indict him. The victim is Carl Thoner, a former newspaper photographer. Thoner's job is to take pictures of WPA projects. He is not strong physically and naturally is much upset because now he is doubly guilty of less majesty. He not only indicted nine politicians and blew the whistle on the local WPA boss when he was fired. Thoner didn't know he was doing wrong. He just figured a grand jury was supposed to do his duty and never thought of the possibility that a man could be "canned" for that. There are still some citizens as naive as that.

Now, under the court's ruling he can be fired again. This time for good. The local court can do nothing to protect him or punish anyone.

Washington Ignored Intimidation Question
Thoner was fired by J. D. Brochie, the present local WPA boss, who supposedly acted on instructions from Dill, phoned from Miami. About the time of this telephone call Dill was conferring with the indicted Sheriff McLeod, his old colleague in the WPA, but within two hours, as the small began to spread over Florida, Thoner was reinstated.

The new grand jury and the court naturally wanted to know what Dill said to McLeod and vice versa and what considerations prompted Thoner's dismissal and reinstatement. Dill said it was none of their business. The WPA in Washington wired the grand jury that, inasmuch as Thoner was reinstated the case wasn't worth bothering about. That wire ignored the question of intimidation of a grand jury.

Chicago Corporation Submits Low Bid for Carload of Chlorine

The bid of the Solway Sales corporation, Chicago, for one carload of chlorine for the sewage treatment plant was approved by the board of public works at a meeting Tuesday in city hall. The board will recommend the Chicago company at a council session Wednesday. The low bid in a field of six was $275 per hundred pounds.

Bids on construction of new sidewalks and repair of old walks in the city were referred to the street and bridge committee. Fred H. Lillge and Robert A. Schultz, Appleton, were tied for low with a bid of 151 cents per square foot for new walks and 40 per cent of their bids for repairing. Two other bids were received.

Albert Gerrits Hurt In Accident on Farm

Forest Junction — Albert Gerrits was the victim of an unusual accident Monday when a hammer with which he was working at the farm of his father, John Gerrits, route 1, Forest Junction, burst and a fragment imbedded itself in his foot. In pounding the hammer the broken piece was thrown off with such force that it penetrated the leather of his heavy shoe and the services of a local doctor were required to extricate the piece of iron from the wound in the foot.

Rate of Carp Development Unusually Rapid in State

Madison — Carp — the curse of sportsmen everywhere and particularly those in the Winnebago area fishing waters — grow so rapidly in Wisconsin lakes that only for a short time are they small enough to be eaten by carnivorous game fishes. University of Wisconsin biologists reported today in a new survey of the problem.

In a new bulletin by Chauncey Juday, one of the directors of the Wisconsin Geological and National History survey, and his assistants, it is shown that the rate of development of carp in Wisconsin waters is unusually rapid. Laboratory experiment on carp eggs taken from one southern Wisconsin lake disclosed that hatching occurred within two days, with a high rate of fertility, and that within five days after birth, the small carp were eating the weed growths which constitute a large part of fish diet.

In cooperation with the state conservation department, which removed more than 15,000,000 carp from three Wisconsin lakes last year, the scientists made a thorough

It's Odd But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
New York.—Several factories are going up in Europe to make synthene, the newest of the substitutes for gasoline as a motor fuel. The substitutes are being used increasingly in countries that lack the bounteous petroleum supplies of the United States.

The new fuel comes first from water gas. If this gas is allowed to flow over hot alkalal and iron, at nearly 900 degrees Fahrenheit and under great pressure, it forms an oily liquid. The pressure is 150 atmospheres, or more than 2,000 pounds to the square inch.
The oil is called synthol. When this oil is boiled under the right pressures some of its molecules "crack." They break down into the hydrocarbons which form explosive motor fuels.
These new gases are called synthene. When the process was discovered about 15 years ago, synthene contained too much oxygen. This is now cleaned out of the gas by adding hydrogen from catalysts.
Europeans hope that the new fuel will not cost so much as gasoline made from cheap grades of coal, which have been on the market for years. In England the government promotes manufacture of this coal-gasoline as an economic and defense measure.

Expect Hot Race For Senator Post

Parties Center Interest on
H. J. Severson

Waupaca — A wide open race for the office of senator of the Waupaca and Portage county district, which was left vacant by the resignation of Senator H. J. Severson, recently elected circuit judge of the seventh judicial district, is seen as political parties consider their strongest candidates for the post.
L. W. Eastling, Manawa, chairman of the Waupaca county board, is being mentioned as the person to seek the post under the Republican banner. Eastling has held several offices in the village of Manawa, and has long been active in public affairs. Some claim he would draw support from some Progressives and Democrats in Waupaca county.
Mayor A. W. Washburn of Clintonville will toss his hat into the ring as a Progressive party candidate. The Democratic party has not yet come forward with any inkling of its choice for the post.
Crystal gazers of the district expect the contest to be one of the "hottest" in the state.

Stevens Point.—H. M. Jacklin, prominent dairy farmer of the town of Stevens Point, county, and long active in the Progressive movement, Wednesday announced his candidacy for state senator from the Twenty-third district on the Progressive ticket.

A son was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stumpf at St. Elizabeth hospital on Friday.
Leo Van Roy post of the American Legion and its auxiliary held a meeting at the clubhouse Tuesday evening. Plans were made to hold their Memorial day services on Sunday afternoon, May 29, which will be followed by a picnic.

Henry Kauer who was a patient at St. Elizabeths hospital, where he underwent a major operation, is recuperating at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Wittmann, Kaukauna.
Anna Quell, who was a patient at St. Elizabeth hospital for the past three weeks, is recuperating at the home of his son, Joseph Quell, Appleton.

HAPPENING

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — For a long time now Hollywood's air pictures have been aiming at the thrills and excitement of "Wings," a silent film of eleven years ago. The target of future aerial dramas will have to be "Test Pilot."

This new one from the Metro lot is a dramatic account of the life of a man engaged in one of the world's most hazardous and spectacular occupations today — the daredevil who tries out new flying models from the factory to see how safe they are and just what performance they'll give.

Clark Gable is the test pilot of the story, Spencer Tracy his mechanic, Lionel Barrymore their boss — and Myrna Loy the Kansas girl and Gable's love-at-first-sight when he crashes on her farm during a cross-country speed test. Here are three academy award winners and a girl rated by many as top favorite among the stars, and in "Test Pilot" they have a vehicle which might do well enough without them but with them is sure to win high favor.

Plenty of Humor

The story resolves itself (after what seemed to me an off-key beginning with Miss Loy a bit on the "Thin Man" side of glibness) into a conflict between the tester's wife and the fatal fascination of the sky — and this, aided by passages of superb dialogue, is splendidly and movingly presented, specially admirable in the screen play by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young, and in Victor Fleming's direction, is the absence of anticipated clichés: Tracy, the quiet pal, does not fall in love with Gable's wife; the picture, although spotted with natural humor, never once halts for obvious "comedy relief" in the climactic test flight the little wife does NOT go aloft with the men.

In the acting department Gable romps away with first place in the spotlighted role, but Tracy when his part permits more than justifies that academy Oscar. Barrymore shines too in his few big scenes, and Miss Loy (who probably won't ever win an Oscar) does very well in this fast company, and that patented charm of hers is potent. In lesser roles Marjorie Main, Gloria Holden and Ted Pearson (as Myrna's "nice boy friend" in Kansas) have brilliant scenes.

Air Thrills include scenes from the Cleveland air races, a power dive in which the plane's wings fall off and the pilot bails out; the crash of a giant new army bomber. Photographically and technically, apart from their sustained fascination and vicarious terror, these scenes are powerful. They look like the real thing (as most of them are) and the story is swift enough to distract any would-be detectors of camera trickery.

The week's other major offering was Paramount's annual campus musical, "College Swing." Pleasant, bright and tuneful, it has Gracie Allen in the role of "dean of men" of the college she inherits as a reward for graduation—200 years after entering it. From that beginning you know what to expect and you get it—with Gracie always around to plug any leaks in interest that might arise. Newcomer Florence George, blonde and lovely and nicely vocal, looks like a bet.

The pictures of Twentieth Century-Fox stars and players adorn one wall of the celebrated studio restaurant known as the Cafe de Paris... Like satellites about a sun, they surround the image of Darryl Zanuck, and Shirley Temple is prominent in the throng.

Parsonage Being Moved
At Forest Junction

Forest Junction — Workmen this week were beginning operations at moving the parsonage of the Forest Junction circuit of Evangelical churches to make room for a new building to be erected this summer at the same site. The building has been purchased by Herbert and Leonard Krueger who are relocating it at the junction of Highway 10 and 57, diagonally across the corner of the Evangelical church grounds here. The work is being done by an Appleton contractor. Work on the new parsonage, which was voted by the circuit last summer, will commence as soon as the old building has been removed. Old school pupils reported by Miss Charlotte Stanelle, teacher, as having a perfect attendance record for the eighth school month are Hildred and Alfred Franke, Janet Klehn, Betty Ziebel, Eugene Plate, Margaret and Gertrude Krueger, Howard Wolfmeyer, Martin Zick, Harland Gross, Willard Boettcher, and Alice Lintner. The school has 15 pupils enrolled. Willard Krueger has been newly enrolled.

Permit Issued for Addition to Bakery

A permit to build an addition to a bakery at 1428 W. Melvin street has been given to Phoebe A. Patter, owner, by the city building inspector. The addition will be constructed of concrete blocks and cost is estimated at $700. E. A. Minton, 112 S. Spruce street was given a permit to construct a new garage on his property. The garage, 12 by 20 feet, is estimated to cost $200. A permit to remodel his residence was given to Alfred Schabo, 1224 W. Packard street. The improvement is estimated at $175. Miss Anna Foreman, 807 W. Franklin street was given a permit to construct an addition and remodel her home. Cost of the work is estimated at $400.

Chilton Pair, Wed 50 Years, Celebrate Anniversary Today

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grassold, Chilton, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today by holding open house for their friends at their home. They have lived in Chilton all their married life with the exception of one year which they spent at Kiel.

Mrs. Grassold was born in Chicago and came to Chilton at the age of three years with her parents. Her father, William Arnold, established a German newspaper there which he edited up to the time of his death. Mr. Grassold came to Chilton as a young man to work in the Arnold printing office, and on the death of Mr. Arnold took over management of the paper which was later discontinued. Later he became editor of the Independent Journal, which five years ago consolidated with the Chilton Times owned by William McHale. The paper is now known as the Chilton Times-Journal. Mr. Grassold acted as associate editor.

The Grassolds have one son, Raymond, Chilton. Their younger son, Randolph, a lieutenant in Company C, 127th infantry, 32nd division, was killed in the World war in which he enlisted shortly after the United States entered the war. He was fatally wounded in the battle of the Marne.

Bills Would Guard Indian Interests

Congressman Proposes 'Sustained Yield' Forest Management

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Two bills designed to guard the interests of the Menominee Indians in Wisconsin have been introduced by Congressman Gerald J. Boyleau, of Wausau.

Authorization of the "sustained yield" method of forest management, as opposed to the old "cut-out, burn-out, and get-out" methods employed on many private timberlands, is the purpose of one of these bills; while the other would enact rules for the enrollment of Menominee Indian children born to enrolled parents.

The bill upholding the principle of sustained-yield forest management, would authorize the secretary of the interior to operate, manage, and conserve the forests of the Menominee reservation in Wisconsin so as to furnish employment and provide for the social and economic advancement of the Menominee tribe.

Proceeds from the sale of products from the reservation forests, as provided in Boyleau's bill, would be deposited in an interest-bearing trust fund account in the United States treasury for the credit of the Menominees. Fifty per cent of the surplus over $750,000 at the end of any one fiscal year would be payable in equal shares to each member of the Menominee tribe, provided it amounts to at least $10 a year, as proposed in the bill. The remaining 50 per cent would be held in an interest-bearing capital reserve fund which would be available for the support of old and indigent members of the tribe and for administrative expenses.

Working Wives Shouldn't Try to Do House Chores

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—My particular case is that of a 30-year-old wife with a 40-year-old husband, no children, married three years. My husband and I both work. Neither gets a large salary, but our combined income enables us to rent a five-room house in the suburbs, pay on a car and furnish and save money. I do all the housework. My husband is of the moody type, has to be continually bolstered up and encouraged and flattered to hold him to his position, which he is always threatening to give up. To tell the truth, some days I am so tired myself I feel I should be the one to get the encouragement and the pat on the head. But I skip it and try not to be too out of patience. The lot of the wife who works outside of the home is not an easy one. How can she be a successful wife and keep a contented husband?

Answer:
I'll say the lot of the woman who has not only to fry the bacon but also bring home her share of it is a hard one. She has not only to do two women's work, which is a burden the good Lord never intended to be laid on any wife's back, but she also has to contend with all the problems that the purely domestic woman has to solve in dealing with a husband, and then plenty more that rise out of the unnatural situation in which she is placed.

There is no denying that in the scheme of things it was designed that the husband should be the breadwinner and the wife should make and keep the home. That division of labor gave each one plenty to do. Unfortunately, however, under present economic conditions it is often necessary, as in your case, for the wife to help make the dough as well as bake it. So far very few men seem to be big enough to realize how hard this is on the wife and to help work out an equitable adjustment of their problem.

There are, of course, exceptions to the rule but the great majority of husbands do not seem to appreciate that for a woman to hold down two jobs puts her under a physical and nervous strain that only one with an iron constitution can stand. She must begin the day under high pressure. Rush through getting the breakfast and doing a little slapdash cleaning up. Hurry to the office or store. Give every ounce of strength and vitality to her work. Hasten home, shopping on the way to buy the food for the evening meal.

Then, tired and worn out by all she has been through, she must clean up the house, cook the dinner and do the thousand chores that it takes to make a comfortable home. She has no time for rest or relaxation or amusement, without which any woman is bound to go to pieces sooner or later.

New and then, as I have said, there is a husband who helps his wife with the housework as she helps him with supporting the home, but most men just take all of the wife's extra work as they take her extra help for granted. They sit and read the paper while she stewers over the stove. They step out for a game of pool after dinner while she washes the dishes, makes the beds and sweeps the floors. They scorn woman's work, and it never occurs to them that she is doing a man's work as well as a woman's work. What a rotten deal they are giving her.

All husbands have to be handled with care, but the woman who works outside of the home must use velvet gloves when she deals with hers, because the very fact that he isn't making enough to support the family makes him supersensitive. He is always looking for a slight and ready to take offense at any criticism, and he is determined to keep his wife in her place and make her cook, clean and wait on him just as much as if he paid all the bills.

Personally, I do not think that any woman who works outside of the house should work in it. I think that those couples where both husband and wife are money earners should live in some comfortable boarding house or hotel. It would save many a working wife from wrecked health and a premature death. It would give her a chance to enjoy life and she would find it easier to get along with her husband if she was not always a bundle of nerves from overwork.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a daughter of 17 who will graduate soon from high school. Her girl friends are all planning to go to college and, of course, she also wants to go, and has been looking forward to doing so. But she has never been a student or shown any special ability or talent in any line. Neither has she ever shown any affection for us or her brother, but rather the lack of it, to such an extent that her father and I have been very much hurt. We are people in moderate circumstances and her father feels that she does not deserve any further sacrifices from us and should be made to go out and earn her living. What should we do?

A WORRIED MOTHER.
Answer:
For the last few years the presidents of a number of the large universities have been urging parents not to send their children to college who are not college material. They say that it is not only a waste of time and money to send boys and girls to college who are not students by nature, who have no love of learning, no desire for culture, no interest in intellectual pursuits; that it is a positive detriment to them, because they acquire idle and extravagant habits, waste the years in which they might be learning some useful trade and fitting themselves to be self-supporting.

I think there are no more pathetic tragedies than those of the parents who have worked their fingers to the bone and gone without the food and medical attention they needed to send boys and girls to college who loafed their way through it and came home with nothing but a college yell and a feeling of superiority to their old fathers and mothers.

I think your husband is exactly right in refusing to make a martyr of himself for this girl, who only wants to go to college because all the other girls are doing it and she

"I was sitting West and the hand is the worst I ever had. South opened with a bid of four hearts, a bad bid, of course. It should have been three hearts. I then bid four spades. This was either bold or rash and I don't know which way I would say. I figured this way. If my partner had nothing, the opponents had a slam; if my partner had something, the sacrifice would be worth while and obviously it was the last opportunity for a bid. North doubled. I made five, which finally proved to be the tie for top.

"I would appreciate your comments on my bid. Of course, I would not have made it had we been vulnerable.
"Yours truly, B. G.—New York."

I note that my correspondent thinks that South's proper bid was three hearts. As a matter of fact this, of course, would have been far better than the four heart shut-out actually used, but still not the best bid by any means. South's holding was distinctly slamish and, although he could not afford to open with a two bid when holding only four honor tricks, the bid that offered the greatest chance of reaching the proper spot was a mere one. West had no need to feel that he was rash in overbidding, for the four heart bid with four spades. His terrific freak made such an overall highly logical. It was North's double, even more than South's opening bid, that led to such a poor match-point score for North-South. Even with equal vulnerability, or nonvulnerability, North should not have considered doubling merely because he held four spade tricks. South had announced (although untruthfully) that his hand was virtually defenseless. And North, with three hearts, should have been doubtful about South's delivering even one trick to the defense of a spade contract.

Admittedly, North was in a "tough spot" after the two previous bids. A pass would convey a picture of less strength than North actually held, and a heart raise might be severely penalized. All in all, however, since North did have to choose from among many evils, the raise to four hearts would have been the least dangerous of any call. After such a raise it would be East's turn to be "on the spot," and he might very well decide to double. West should not permit it to stand but should go to five spades. This, I am afraid, North probably would have to leave in, since his own bad opening bid had deprived him of the opportunity to locate an ace in the North hand and since, therefore, he could not know that a small slam in either diamonds or hearts would be a lay-down.

My Neighbor Says—

Some garden-makers like to use a dibber, which is merely a pointed stick, when planting gladioli bulbs because in that way they can plant more rapidly. When this tool is used, one simply thrusts it into the ground, drops the bulb in place, covers it with the foot, and repeat the operation. There is some danger, however, that the bulbs will remain hung halfway to the bottom of the hole, with an air pocket underneath. If this happens, the bulb will be almost certain to rot. A dibber may be used successfully if it is large enough so that the hole it makes will accommodate the largest bulbs.

Gladys Swarthout Says Diet Question of Habit

BY ELSIE PIERCE
Gladys Swarthout feels that every woman should be as thin as her favorite star if she wants to be and it doesn't necessarily involve monotonous dieting or strenuous exercising. All you have to do is "think thin."

I like that theory because it is in line with one I have had on the subject of beauty generally. Before you can achieve true beauty you have to think and feel and want it.

But let us continue with Miss Swarthout's reducing hints. She says:
"I don't believe that dieting is dependent on will power to cut down on food, rather it is a matter of automatically ordering the correct foods and acquiring the habit which will of preferring the foods which are most healthful."

"Pastry, candy, potatoes in any form, fried or richly seasoned gravies do not tempt me any more than my pet evening gown when I am dressing for the golf course. To wear the latter would be ridiculous, and social suicide to boot. To eat these menacing foods would be suicide to one's career, easy breathing, peace of mind, proper proportion and proper motion."

"I believe that those foods are poisons that play havoc with complexion as well as figure contours. I also believe that any woman can develop a positive distaste for foods which will be bad for her and that this method is far wiser than periodical dieting followed by lapses."

Miss Swarthout points out that it is, or should be, as easy to cultivate a taste for simple and good food, just as it is to cultivate a taste for tinned and really smart clothes. Light broths, boiled meats, lamb, broiled steak, chicken, vegetables, except for peas, lima beans or corn; salads with lemon dressing, stewed fruits, a water ice or light custard if desserts are vital certainly offer enough variety and they are sane, sensible, simple foods.

If you would like my complete booklets "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) and "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) are yours for ten cents each. They cover the subjects thoroughly. Send for them giving your name and address to the Bell Library, care of this newspaper.

Burden of Good Speech Training Rests on Mother

BY ANGELO PATRI
Children learn by imitation, and that is why mother should know that her every action becomes a lesson to the watching, listening, eager child. She is the child's first teacher, and the most important. Her power is great. What she would have the child become in manners, in conduct, in attitudes, in taste, she must be.

The child's speech is tremendously important. By it people judge his character. They classify him according to the quality of his speech. They listen to him when his tones are pleasant to listen to. They turn from him when they are unpleasant. A child's speech is a passport to social living. Mother should make sure it is the kind of a passport that carries her child to pleasant places.

Speech, of course, is to a great degree a matter of imitation. If a mother uses correct, clear, simple speech her child will talk that way, for speech is catching. So, talk to the baby as you would to your most honored friend. Be courteous. Speak cheerfully. Speak gently. Never raise your voice. The louder you shout the deafner he will be. He hears best when you speak most gently. Use simple words. Use the right names for things. Don't teach a child to call his breakfast "Brekkie."

Use the right word—breakfast. All baby talk is out.

The child will not be able to say the words accurately in the beginning. But don't correct him. Just say the right word clearly and let it go at that. Do not drill a child in right speech. That will make him afraid to talk at all. It may bring on stammering. Let the baby alone. Accept his effort; praise it; listen carefully and try to understand his first efforts at telling you something. Your listening gives him confidence, and that's what he needs most.

If the child names an animal by the sound it makes, accept that name. "Bow-wow." "Choo-choo" are baby words. They are right as far as they go. Recognize the dog and the train as the baby names them. And then say to him: "What does the dog say?" And then, "Who says bow-wow?" Soon the child will say "dog" when he means dog, and "train" when he means train; and that's as it ought to be.

One of the best ways to teach a baby language is to sing to him. Sing lovely lullabies. A baby hears before he understands. He hears you, feels you, and remembers even though he cannot understand. Sing lovely songs to him. Say a child's prayer over his crib. Your child will hear and remember and be helped by it. Don't omit the nursery rhymes. Say them to the baby as you bathe and dress and play with him. Select the ones that have marked rhythm and much repetition, like "To market, to market, to buy a fat pig."

Electric Lights

News about the work of Volta, the Italian, traveled to England and there it was read by a young man named Humphry Davy. He was only 22 years of age at the time, but he was wide awake, and much interested in all that had to do with science.

Davy was working as an assistant to a doctor in the city of Bristol but in his spare time he made a battery of the crude type designed by Volta. With this battery, or "voltaic pile," he carried on tests with electric sparks.

One hundred thousand watt "incandescent lamp" made for display.

When the current passed thru a piece of well burnt charcoal, and jumped to another piece of charcoal, he found it made a good-sized spark.

"I used a great number of cells for power, could I produce a spark so bright as to make a good light," the young Englishman wondered.

As a test, Davy made a battery of 150 cells. This produced a fairly good light, and made him decide to go on with the work and make a still more powerful battery.

Helped by money given him by friends, Davy put together a battery containing 2,000 cells! What a battery it was, and what a spark it produced! A dazzling light came as the spark "arched" from one piece of charcoal to the other.

Davy was 29 years of age when he showed his 2,000 cell battery and "arch light" to the public. Later it came to be called an "arc light."

The arc light did not come into wide use until better ways of obtaining electric power were learned. About the year 1850, however, dynamos good enough to supply a steady electric current were made. The streets of Paris and other cities then were brightened with arc lights at night.

The arc light worked well for the streets, but it was not suited to inside houses. A 31-year-old American inventor — Thomas Edison — set to work on the problem of making a good light for homes. With the help of other men, he at length brought forth the incandescent or "glow" light. It was made up of carbon inside a glass bulb from which the air had been pumped. An electric current made the carbon so hot that it glowed.

Edison ranks as probably the greatest inventor in all history. I shall have more to say of his work at some future time.

Many other inventors have worked on electric lights, and they have given us the excellent lights we have today. Streets are now lighted with incandescent lamps. Several years ago a 100,000 watt lamp was made, but it was too powerful for any practical use, and was employed only for public display.

I actually know a woman who took the wrong mink coat, and one day said how much more beautiful her coat was than she had thought when she got it. Another woman asked to see it, then ripped the lower corner of the lining, which disclosed her own name! And that is how one exchange was rectified.

Old Gardener Says:

The Kansas gay-feather, or blazing-star, which is botanically Liatris scariosa, has long been familiar to garden makers as a dependable late summer bloomer. perennial. Many persons, however, did not find the bluish-purple of the flower particularly pleasing. This year a pure white form of the popular blazing-star has been introduced. It grows to a height of three or four feet and the imposing spikes are more than half covered with clean, white, button-like blossoms. This white blazing-star, which is usually

Board Urged to Remodel School Under PWA Setup

Building Trades Head Believes Change From WPA Would Aid Craftsmen

Charles Debenack, president of the Appleton Building Trades council, confronted the board of education with a plea to reconsider plans for remodeling the old high school for use as an orthopedic school and administrative offices under a WPA grant at Lincoln school last night. Debenack said it was not his intention to jeopardize the WPA grant already allotted but requested the board to shift the work to a PWA project to permit competitive building.

"About 95 per cent of Appleton craftsmen are now out of work," Debenack said, "and employment on the high school remodeling job would aid materially. WPA requires relief labor and our workmen are too proud to go on relief to get work. It is obvious that skilled work done by relief labor will be of inferior quality and it is our hope that you will find it possible to receive a grant from PWA authorities and discard the WPA plan."

Seymour Gmeiner, president of the board, assured Debenack the matter would be investigated and explained that PWA was closing down at the time the application was made for federal aid.

Revising PWA Debenack said private business failed to take up the construction burden when PWA was cutting down and the government division is being revived. He urged board members to investigate wage scales before assuming they were too high and prohibited construction. "There is a current move to discredit building trade wages which, if analyzed, are no more than a living wage," he declared.

"Where construction in Appleton has run into hundreds of thousands of dollars by this time in previous years, construction is now lagging and building permits issued to date are valued at about $20,000," he continued. "Figures show the average pay of a building craftsman in Wisconsin during the last five years was $700 to $1,200 annually," he concluded.

The board granted major contractors at the new senior high school a time extension to May 27 to complete their work.

Beginning April 28, bids on the following equipment will be received until May 12: auditorium seats, classroom chairs and desks, library equipment, laboratory equipment, domestic arts furniture, mechanical drawing equipment, commercial room tables and chairs.

Engages New Teachers
Edgar Hagene, Randolph, Wis., a graduate of Oshkosh State Teachers college, was named to fill the history teaching vacancy at Appleton High school. Miss Rose B. Wuest, teacher at New Holstein the last 13 years and graduate of Oshkosh State Teachers college, has been engaged to fill for Miss Agnes Jolin, fifth grade teacher at Edison school, who has been granted a leave of absence.

Robert Kunitz, Appleton, graduate of La Crosse State Teachers college, was hired as physical education instructor at Roosevelt Junior High school to replace William Pickett, who will teach at the high school next year. Miss Enola Brandt, graduating from Milwaukee State Teachers college this year, will teach English at the high school. Miss Lois Gould was elected head of the social science department at the high school.

The resignation of Miss Jean Owen, office clerk at Roosevelt Junior High school, effective July 1, was accepted and Miss Helen Steffen, Appleton high school graduate and former student at Lawrence college, was named to fill the vacancy.

Curtail Schedule At 2 K-C Plants

30 Employees to be Laid Off at Lakeview, Badger-Globe Mills

Neenah—Curtailment of running schedules, resulting in a lay-off of 30 employees within two or three days at the Lakeview and Badger-Globe mills of the Kimberly-Clark corporation, was announced this afternoon by S. F. Shattuck, vice president.

The 30 employees who will be released have been with the corporation for only six months or less and the principle of seniority is being followed in all layoffs, Shattuck stated.

Kotex converting schedules will be shortened from six to five days, and Kleenex operations will be reduced from 14 to 12 interfolding machines, while two crepe wadding machines at the Badger-Globe will be shut down.

Shattuck said: "The management of the corporation appreciates the personal, social, and community effects of decreased employment. It has been the hope of the management that an upturn in the national business recession might come in time to avoid even a partial shutdown of equipment, but it now becomes evident that this cannot be avoided. Therefore, intensive study has been given not to how many employees can be released but to how many can be retained."

Shattuck stressed in his announcement that the layoff applies only to Lakeview and Badger-Globe mills.

"The balance of the program is one of adjustment within the groups within the two mills," Shattuck said. "Extended conferences and conversations are being held during the closing days of this week at both mills relative to the layoff. Managers William Kellert and his personnel staff are conducting group and personal conversations in order that changes may be made with all available information in mind and that all may understand to the fullest extent the reason for the proposed re-alignment."

Certain restraining programs are necessary, it is expected that several weeks will be taken to complete the readjustment. In all movements, the corporation's policy has been and will continue to be to spread the work as equally as possible among all employees," Shattuck concluded.

Village Tax Rates in Upward Trend in State

Madison—The 362 incorporated villages in Wisconsin levied taxes of $7,604,533 on general property in 1937, the state tax commission announced today.

The average tax rate was $28.35 per thousand, or $124 higher than in 1936. Germantown's rate of $8.43 was the lowest and Waukegan's rate of $39.79 was the highest.

An upward trend in village tax rates during the last few years was attributed by the commission to larger relief expenditures and exemption of new improvements to real estate.

"It is anticipated the return of these improvements to the tax roll in 1938 will make possible a lowering of tax rates next year," the commission said.

The villages in 1937 levied 7.15 per cent of the $106,261,010 total state general property taxes. The levy for local village purposes was $1,970,130.

Bob LaFollette Says Recession Helps Navy Bill

gress asking for expansion of the navy, the state department made public a series of reported indignities to Americans at the hands of Japanese in China.

"Perhaps this exact timing was merely a coincidence," LaFollette said, "but it had a tendency to arouse for the naval expansion bill."

Germany's annexation of Austria he continued, had been "interpreted as a vague threat to this country" and the "warfare in China and Spain has been used to exploit American love for democracy."

Fears Aroused
Whenever a huge program of armament expansion confronts us," LaFollette declared, "there are similar attempts to rouse apprehension among the people that we are in danger of attack."

Senator Holt (D-W. Va.), declared that if administration forces apply "pressure" to hasten passage of the expansion bill foes may resort to a filibuster on it.

Holt objected yesterday to an unanimous agreement to set a time for closing debate. Senator Nye (R-N. D.), another opponent of the bill, said he would not agree to setting a time for voting on either the bill or amendments to it.

LaFollette, his voice resounding through the chamber, asserted that "before more billions for armaments are saddled onto the taxpayers, before we give way to this hysteria, the people of the United States should realize that the country is not in danger of attacking now or in the visible future."

Quoting naval experts as saying it would be necessary for a foreign aggressor to have two ships to every one of the United States in an attempt to invade this country, LaFollette asserted that "Germany, Japan and Italy combined would not have this two-to-one ratio."

"No Potential Enemy"
"There is no potential enemy, no combination of enemies which can hope to carry out a successful invasion of the United States," he shouted.

If there were any basis for fears that the Atlantic coast might be attacked, LaFollette continued, then "we are criminally negligent" in not removing munitions and aircraft factories in east coast yards.

"Lifting his arms for emphasis, he asserted that 'a complete destruction of the British fleet would have to be a prerequisite of an attack on any country in this hemisphere.' He added that it was to Great Britain's interest to keep the Atlantic shipping lanes open.

The navy, armed with a record peacetime $346,866,494 appropriation, prepared today to ask bids with a minimum of delay on two more battleships and a score of other craft.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the regular appropriation bill for the next fiscal year, providing $140,000,000 to start work on the 22 new craft and continue construction of some 60 others.

Detailed designs of the battleships are complete, officials said. They will be 1,000 tons or more larger, but otherwise similar to the 33,000-ton U. S. S. Washington and U. S. S. North Carolina, which were started late last year.

Construction of projected "super battleships" of about 45,000 tons depend on congressional approval of the separate $1,156,000,000 fleet expansion bill which the senate is debating.

Not Additions To Fleet
The next pair of battleships will be known merely as Nos. 57 and 58 until they are named for states, probably several months hence. They will replace the Texas and the Nevada, which in 1940 reach the treaty average status of 25 years.

Thus navy officials, who estimate they will cost $70,000,000 each do not consider them additions to the fleet.

Proposals to authorize the 45,000-ton vessels continued under fire in the senate. Senator Nye (R-N. D.) told reporters there was an "excellent chance" to eliminate from the expansion bill authority to build any new battleships of that size.

He added that the senate might throw out the whole provision which the bill carries for three battleships in addition to those already provided for by law, and contended that opponents of the measure were gaining strength daily.

Seeks Vote By Friday
Meanwhile, Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky held out the threat of night sessions in an effort to bring the expansion measure to a final vote by Friday.

He told the senate it was "perfectly obvious" that debate on the bill was not affecting votes because "nobody is listening to it."

The two new battleships provided for in the regular appropriation bill will be built from modified plans of the Washington and North Carolina, which mount nine 16-inch guns. Navy experts said the ships would be faster, stronger, new pair may be faster, stronger, more powerful, and possess greater striking power.

Inasmuch as the North Carolina and Washington are being built at navy yards, officials thought it likely contracts for the new battleships would be let to private plants.

Only those at Quincy, Mass.; Camden, N. J., and Newport News, Va., are equipped to build ships of the size.

From four to five years will be required to complete them from the time the award is made, probably this summer.

Governor Asked To Intervene To Prevent Strike

Allis-Chalmers CIO Group Tells Him Record Walkout Threatened

Milwaukee—Gov. LaFollette was requested by the United Automobile Workers (CIO) bargaining committee at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company late yesterday to "personally intervene to prevent the largest strike in the state's history."

Harold Christoffel, president of the plant local, said an appeal was telegraphed to the governor after the company rejected the union's basic proposals for a union shop, joint agreement with the company's Pittsburgh and Boston plants, seniority rights admitting no exclusions under an ability clause and other demands.

Christoffel said "spontaneous protests against the management's failure to meet the union's demands" were staged throughout the plant yesterday, involving 7,000 workers. A 20-minute stoppage occurred in the tractor shops where more than 2,000 men are employed, he stated.

Informed of the union's telegraphed appeal to the governor, General Otto H. Falk, board chairman of the company, declared: "We welcome the opportunity of conferring with Governor LaFollette, or any group of disinterested citizens of this state, in order to show the extreme fairness of the collective bargaining proposal which we have made to the union for the current year."

Max W. Babb, company president, said there had been some stoppages at the plant but that he did not know their duration or the number of men involved.

Madison—Jack Kyle, secretary of the state labor relations board, received instructions from the governor's office today to investigate a labor dispute in the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company at West Allis.

Kyle said he asked S. N. Moe, regional labor board director at Milwaukee, to confer with parties to the dispute and make a full report to the Madison office.

The governor's office summoned Kyle after receiving a telegram from Harold Christoffel, president of the local union of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) requesting "personal" intervention by the governor.

Coogan's Fortune Is Now Only $545,924, Inventory Reveals

Los Angeles—(AP)—Jackie Coogan dropped out of the millionaire class today.

Of the $4,000,000 "The Kid" claims to have earned as a film star, only $545,924 now remains. And $171,96 of that represents sums advanced for his clothing and expenses by the Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.

It was a blow to 23-year-old Jackie—this deflationary inventory filed by a court-appointed receiver in his multi-million dollar accounting suit against his mother and stepfather, Lillian and Arthur L. Bernstein.

The receiver listed gross assets of the Coogan corporation at $696,304, including $498,151 in real estate. Against this are liabilities of $150,380, including $21,729 due Mrs. Bernstein as a company officer.

Jackie's mother's own gross assets amount to $39,443, of which $27,430 is in stocks. She has an outstanding bank debt of $7,500.

Her husband, Bernstein, has gross assets of $2,635, but only $447 cash in the bank. He owes the Coogan corporation $42,821 on a loan.

See Cut in Usual Expenses During Approaching Year

Reduction of 5 1-2 Per Cent Indicated in Customary Funds

Washington—(AP)—Uncle Sam, taking a peek into his checkbook, decided today he will be able to run regular government departments more economically next year. All the household bills aren't in yet, but he calculated, on the basis of what he has spent this year, that he will get along with about 5 1/2 per cent less for customary annual expenses.

The relief problem, however, may send his total living costs far into the red, compared with this year. No relief funds for 1939 have yet been voted, nor have any pump-priming appropriations $300,000,000 less.

The house has voted to give Uncle Sam $5,388,895.63 for regular expenditures for the year beginning July 1—about $200,000,000 less than the same items cost him in the current 12 months. Relief costs for both years are excluded.

Five portions of this total have been approved by the senate and President Roosevelt. The other bills either haven't yet gone through the senate or have not been accepted finally by both chambers. Minor changes may be made in these incomplete bills.

The house trimmed about $14,000,000 off Jan. 1 estimates of government expenses for the 1939 fiscal year.

Below Estimates
All regular appropriation bills at this point are below the budget bureau's estimates, except for non-military activities of the war department. The house boosted the latter's 1939 total primarily because President Roosevelt suggested a big increase in flood control projects.

Four of the appropriation bills are smaller than for 1938, while the others are larger. Congress made the deepest cut in departmental expenditures by approving $1,403,682,526 for the treasury and postoffice departments—$172,731,162 less than for this year.

Join Attack on State's School Tuition Measure

Wisconsin Education Association Makes Plea For Revision

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Joining with the Wisconsin Association of School Boards, the Wisconsin Education Association today declared that the state's high school tuition law is unfair, and characterized it as a "hang-over from a generation ago, unsuited to conditions in 1938."

The tuition statute is faulty, the teachers' group maintained, because it does not permit high schools to make any charge to non-resident students for the cost of school buildings, maintenance, heating or janitor service, for library books, desks, school furnishings and other equipment.

As a result, the tuition law has "forced many villages into an excessive school tax rate. The study of the association showed that last year in some schools over 80 per cent of the student body was non-resident, and in the majority of village high schools in Wisconsin over half the pupils are from areas not in the high school district," said O. H. Plenzke, secretary and legislative representative of the association.

"Grossly Unfair"

Plenzke termed grossly unfair a situation which permits "the village districts to charge tuition for only a fractional part of the instructional cost and for nothing else."

The median tuition rate in Wisconsin last year, according to the association's survey, was $72, while the median cost of schooling a high school pupil was $110.50 for that year.

"The almost universal high school attendance of eighth grade graduates from rural areas is certainly to be commended," the association's statement said, "but at the same time the villages can hardly be expected to pay a large share of the cost of education of these children as well as the cost of educating their own children."

The tuition law must be overhauled, and soon, Plenzke concluded.

Plans Made for Gravel Crushing

Brillion Town Board Has Special Session to Outline Program

Forest Junction—Arrangements for the season's gravel crushing to be opened within the next few weeks were made by the Brillion town board of supervisors in a special session at the town hall here Monday. An appropriation of $1,500 was voted for the project to be taken from the $2,992 which the township received as gasoline tax revenue from the state treasurer. The balance of this fund will be otherwise expended for highway maintenance. Frank Binsfeld was again appointed to manage the crushing operations as in previous years.

Expenditures for gravel crushing and distribution purposes last year aggregated $2,260. This year's appropriation carried the same rate of 7 cents per yard mile which was paid local truckers last year for hauling the gravel from the crusher to the various road districts in the township, where it is unloaded at the direction of the road district superintendents.

Other appointments by the board Monday included that of Silverius Schaefer to his previous position as township mechanic and tractor driver, and Edward Freitag as justice of the peace to fill the two-year position left vacant by the refusal of S. E. Jansch to qualify after his election this spring. Purchase of a new tractor, voted by the last annual meeting, will probably be effected by the board before the opening of gravel crushing activities.

SPRING'S HERE!

Billings, Mont. —(U)— Almanacs to the contrary, spring didn't arrive in Billings this year until the middle of April.

"We don't consider it spring until our 'guests' at city jail total more than 10," said the desk sergeant at police headquarters.

"Guests" are these occupants of jail beds who appear voluntarily for a night's lodging.

"The 'guest' beds don't fill up until wanderlust gets into the blood of hibernating vagrants," said the desk sergeant. "That's when spring arrives."

SPRING TONIC

Manhattan, Kas. — (U)— Grandmother had a recipe of molasses, onion and sulphur that she called "spring tonic."

"Substitute sodium arsenite for the sulphur and you get as neat a grasshopper poison as can be imagined," says Dr. E. G. Kelly of the Kansas State College extension service.

Thirty thousand gallons of it already have been sent to 20 Kansas counties as "spring tonic" for hatching young "hoppers."

Vaughan's Homer Beats Cubs, 6-5

Blow Comes in Seventh Frame With the Bases LoadedFRENCH IS LOSER*Giants Mow Down Phils Twice; Cardinals Trip Reds

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, 1935 National league batting champion, unwound his big bat for a home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning yesterday and brought Pittsburgh's Pirates a 6 to 5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The slugging shortstop completed a perfect day at bat, four hits and a base on balls in four trips to the plate, by picking out Larry French's fast ball with the count three and two and parking it in the second tier of the right field stands. It was his second homer this season and both brought the Pirates from behind to victory.

This broke up a nicely pitched game for the Chicago southpaw, who had scattered four hits in the six previous innings, although Pittsburgh already had chalked up one run in the rousing seventh.

GIANTS TAKE TWO
New York—(AP)—The Giants mowed down the fabled Phillies, 7 to 3 and 11 to 6, in both ends of the year's first big league doubleheader yesterday to stretch their winning streak to seven straight and climb into a tie for first place in the National league. A crowd of 21,829 turned out to see them do it.

Harry Gumbert pitched a six-hitter in the opener, running into serious trouble only in the eighth when Chuck Klein clouted a homer with a mate aboard. Cliff Melton, who relieved Bill Lohman in the fifth frame of the nightcap, received credit for the second game, his third victory of the season, when the Giants put on a six-run spree in the seventh to win.

Klein also whacked a homer in the seventh to win.

It was the fourth consecutive defeat for the seventh place Brewers. Pitcher George Blaeholder, making his first start since a recent illness, was clubbed from the mound by the Indians in the fifth.

In his brief turn he gave up five runs and put a sixth on base. Milwaukee counted its run in the second on Storti's single, Schulte's forceout, and successive singles by Hankins and Just.

Columbus in Slump
Like their major league kinsmen, the Columbus Red Birds are having a rocky start in the 1938 American association race.

The St. Louis Cardinals, owners of the birds, have won but two of their nine games in the National league.

The Red Birds today faced the opening of their first western swing around the league with two victories in 11 starts.

Five rookie Columbus players yielded 12 hits in a loosely pitched game yesterday and the birds lost to St. Paul, 10 to 8, although they counted 17 hits which included three doubles, two triples and right fielder Milton Boeck's home run.

No games were scheduled for today as the clubs journeyed westward to lift the lid on the season in that sector of the league.

Eddie Joost paced Kansas City with four hits as they won from Louisville, 7 to 4, and a ninth-inning rally by Toledo defeated Minneapolis, 7 to 6.

SOFTBALLERS WANT GAME
Brillion — Brillion softball team, sponsored by Arno Scharf, is seeking games with the best clubs in this section of the state. Games may be arranged by calling Brillion 67 or writing Arno Scharf at Brillion.

24 Appleton Men Roll Tonight at State Tournament

Will Show in Doubles, Singles; Youngest Team Rolls

NEENAH-MENASHA — Twenty booster teams from Neenah, Menasha and Oshkosh rolled in the thirty-sixth annual state bowling tournament Wednesday night with only one threatening the 2,558 mark set up by George's Tavern, Menasha, Tuesday evening. The best mark of the evening was a 2,502 by Wadhams Oil Co., Oshkosh, on games of 841, 768 and 893.

The youngest team entered in the state tournament rolled on the First National Bank, Menasha, No. 2 squad and counted a 909 series on games of 250, 321 and 338. Members of the team were J. Spalding, F. Landgraf, E. Landgraf, T. Landig and H. Calder, all boys from 8 to 11 years of age.

Although their scoring didn't set any records, the boys posted at least one mark by rolling their lines in 90 minutes. They stood in line waiting for their turns Wednesday afternoon and if the first ball didn't clean up all of the pins, the boys didn't wait for the return. They just took another one from the rack and let fly. F. Landgraf and T. Landig tied for high series with 200 counts. The other scores were J. Spalding, 163; E. Landgraf, 165; and H. Calder, 159.

Another youthful team was the Gear's Ice Cream five, composed of bowlers from St. Mary High school. Members of the team and their scores were G. Picard, 368; A. Romneck, 466; J. Schommer, 442; E. Laux, 471, and B. Cornen, 428. High single game scores Wednesday evening included J. Lyndekker, 207; H. Lang, 204; J. Hyntz, 210; E. Nitz, 213 and 200; and R. Crowe, 202.

Cleveland Employs Owens as Instructor in Playground Work

Cleveland — (AP) — The slim, sinewy legs that carried dusky Jesse Owens through collegiate triumphs to international fame as an Olympic champion supported today a municipal "bath house attendant."

The ebony flash, who left in his wake a flock of shattered track records as an Ohio State university athlete, became a city employee yesterday. Salary: $1,180 annually.

Park Director Hugo Varga explained the Cleveland Negro's bath house title is technical.

Jesse's duties in fact will involve playground instruction and eventually perhaps, leadership in the city's recreation division.

"His job will be to make his excellent talent and ability available to the children on playgrounds as well as at the bath house," Varga said. "We believe he will make an important place for himself."

Milwaukee — Candidates for the javelin throw on the Marquette university track team are being tutored by an expert. He is Ward Cuff, New York Giants' halfback and ex-Hilltop star, who is back in school this semester and who yesterday tossed the spear 203 feet as he showed the novices how the other day.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

NOW that the Fishermen's Party is almost a memory, the bulls and a few letters and such like being the last details, we'll try running this column offener and get back into the sport page business. For at least three weeks the sports page has just been incidental, but we must admit that Helper Dick Davis did a darned good job and the various correspondents kept us in the ball game. At the moment the track season is getting along fairly well. That is it's getting along well for Art Denney at Lawrence and not so well for Joe Shields at the high school.

Art's gang had a dual meet with Carroll last week and turned in some excellent times, distances and heights and won. Captain Sam Leete was a spectator and will be for at least another week. When he gets back in shape the Vikings will be just that much stronger.

Next Wednesday Lawrence will compete in a dual meet with Ripon.

Leading Jockeys Favor Stagehand As Derby Winner

Five Cast Ballots for Howard Entry, Three Pick Fighting Fox

NEW YORK — (AP) — By the narrow majority of two votes, a jury of 12 of the country's foremost jockeys today named Maxwell Howard's Stagehand the probable winner of the Kentucky derby at Churchill Downs May 7.

The Earl Sande-trained son of Sickle, conqueror of Seabiscuit in the Santa Anita handicap, received votes of confidence from five of the experts. Three cast their ballots for William Woodward's Fighting Fox, two for Dr. J. W. Williams DuPont Jr.'s forefather farm, and one each for W. S. Kilmer's Nedyar and Hal Price Headley's Menow.

Strone in Stretch
Stagehand received the support of Nick Wall, Johnny Gilbert, Lester Balaski, Johnny Longden and Earl Porter. All agreed it would take a mighty good horse to hold off the Howard entry when he makes his bid in the stretch.

"The way he ran for me in the Santa Anita handicap against a horse like Seabiscuit and with the derby distance a mile and a quarter, he looks good to me," said Wall.

Although there is a chance he will not get to ride Monday, Charles Kurlinger, winner with War Admiral last year, stuck with the speedy Headley colt. Kurlinger's suspension for disobedience to trainer Hugh Fountaine of the Brookmeade stable may not be lifted before derby time.

Wayne Wright was the lone supporter of Nedyar; he saw promise in the colt's race back of Merly Lassie at Jamaica Saturday.

Involve playground instruction and eventually perhaps, leadership in the city's recreation division.

Kaukauna Nosed Out by W. DePere Tracksters, 57-51Peterson Takes Three Firsts for Kaws; Berken Wins Four

KAUKAUNA — Despite a pronounced weakness in the field events, Kaukauna High school tracksters kept up with West De Pere for 11 of 12 events in a dual meet here yesterday afternoon, losing out 57 to 51 when the Black Phantoms topped first place in the high jump. At the end of eight events, the Kaws had a 39 to 33 margin.

Peterson was outstanding for the Kaws, taking three firsts and a second. Connie Berken entered four events and won them all for the visitors.

Peterson raced to an easy win in the high hurdles, the first event of the day, followed by his teammate Schubring. Lambie ran the 440 in his best time of the year, 54.1, to easily outdistance Johnson of West De Pere. Vandenberg ran his own race to finish fast and take the mile, with Berken rising up the Phantoms' initial first place when he outsped his teammate, Johnson, and Lambie in the 220.

Kaws in Lead
Peterson and Meyer finished in that order in the low hurdles and Bob Cooper raced home in the half mile to put the Kaws in the lead at 39 to 24, their largest margin of the afternoon. But Berken took both the discus and shotput with his teammates taking second and third in each event to put the visitors in front, 42-39. The best Kaukauna could do in the pole vault was a tie for second by Bob Derus, but Peterson's first and Meitner's second in the broad jump brought the Kaws to within a point with the high jump the last event.

New London Golfer Sets Course Record

New London — Edward Wendlandt, Jr., broke the amateur record at Springdale Golf course yesterday afternoon when he shot a 35 for nine holes, one below par. Par is the best previous mark.

The score was made possible by two birdies, one on No. 3 and another on No. 4, considered the most difficult on the course. Wendlandt sank both shots from off the green.

The record was marred by one stroke over par on No. 7.

Playing in the foursome with Wendlandt and keeping a close count on his progress were Robert Krause, Clarence Laux and the Rev. Anthony Baier. On second round, Wendlandt totaled 41.

A Derby Favorite's Day; Lawrin Shows What It's Like

LAWRIN'S hoofs are inspected as day begins. First and last to visit Lawrin is blacksmith. After workout, blacksmith fills Lawrin's hoofs with mud to keep them from becoming brittle.

H. M. JONES, trainer for H. M. Woolf stables, on gray horse which is known as "lead pony," leads string of Woolf horses to workout. Most trainers work their horses around 7 a. m., to get on track before it becomes chopped up by other horses.

THERE IS one workout for each Kentucky Derby candidate a day. This is it. Exercise boy is aboard Lawrin on morning gallop. In early training, a horse gallops three-quarters of a mile. The distance is increased up to 1 1/2 miles—the Derby distance.

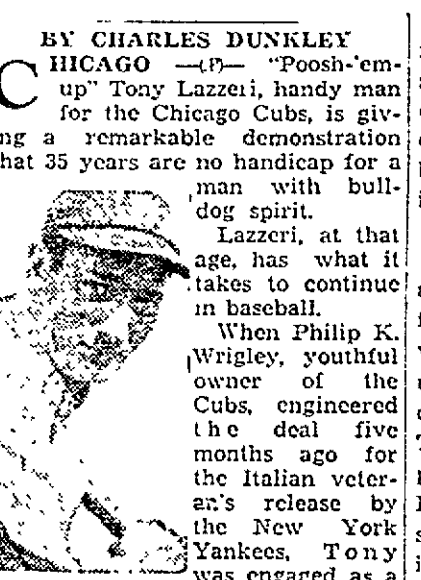

GROOM gives Lawrin his rubdown, just after exercise boy has led him back to stall. Lawrin's trainer is never far away. He has watched every step Lawrin took during the workout. Trainer, who feeds Lawrin carrots, rates as his best friend.

LAWRIN gets drink of water after exercise at Churchill Downs. Having been blanketed following the rubdown, horse is walked for about 45 minutes. At intervals of 10 minutes he is given drink of water. Each horse has individual pail.

coach, strategist and utility second baseman.

To date the Cubs have played nine games and Lazzeri has been in seven, assaulting National league pitching for eight hits, including two home-runs on successive days.

New London Squad Outfoots Neenah In Track Contest

D. Stern Paces Winners; Collects Total of 15 Points

NEENAH — New London High school's trackmen outfooted the Neenah squad, 72 to 36, here Wednesday afternoon.

Bucking a strong "outh wind" to give Neenah its worst beating in many years, the New London aggregation collected nine first places to Neenah's three and seven seconds to Neenah's five, while each team scored six third places. The victors blanketed Neenah in two events and allowed the Rockets only one point in each of three others.

D. Stern paced the New London contingent, collecting a total of 15 points. He drew two first places in the 120-yard high hurdles and pole vault, a second place in the 220-yard low hurdles and two third places in the broad jump and discus.

Hoier Gets 10 Points

Hoier of New London took second scoring honors, netting 10 points on first places in the 220-yard low hurdles and high jump, and a second place in the 170-yard high hurdles.

Captain Frank Heertl, Neenah, and Meinhardt, New London, shared third honors in scoring, each counting 10 points. The former took two first places in the 100-yard dash and 200-yard dash, while the latter took first in the 440-yard dash and first in the broad jump.

Because it was the opening meet for both teams, and the driving south wind probably had something to do with it, the trackmen failed to make a good showing, although Schmidt, New London, paced the mile in 4 minutes 56 seconds, the best mark of the afternoon. Meinhardt also turned in a fairly good time when he footed the 440-yard dash in 56 seconds.

Summary of events:

100-yard dash—Haertl (N), first; Wilkinson (NL), second; Schmidt (NL), third. Time—11.2 seconds.

220-yard dash—Haertl (N), first; Wilkinson (NL), second; Schmidt (NL), third. Time—25.4 seconds.

Doug Henderson, Ex - Bullfighter, Tosses the Duke

Pins Ruppenthal Twice; Dorsetti Is Winner Over Holtz

BY RANDY HAASE

MENASHA — A new mat hero, one obviously destined to take the measure of the Italian rebel, Joe Dorsetti, appeared in the mat show at S. A. Cook armory Wednesday evening in the person of Doug Henderson, ex-bullfighter. Henderson took two straight falls from Duke Ruppenthal, the first in 17 minutes and the second in five minutes.

The Tigerton Tiger was back in the villain role and the crowd was highly pleased. Clarence Rhynes, Oshkosh, was the referee. The boys mixed it up freely with Henderson handing out rough stuff too, but only in retaliation. The Duke started a series of flying drop kicks, missed one and lay on his back until Henderson fell on him for the first fall. Henderson had a bit more activity for the second fall, using a series of flying headlocks before landing on Ruppenthal with a body press.

The mat fans still are hoping for a hero who will curb Joe Dorsetti for Pete Holtz, Illinois state middleweight champion, failed in his attempt in the windup last night. Dorsetti took two falls with a head-twist after the usual routine of blows, kicks and strangling.

Holtz Good Showman

Holtz, however, is a good showman and gave a realistic exhibition of grogginess. Stan Pesek served as referee and although a bit more active than the usual referee, the routine was the same. Dorsetti would get rough and with an admonishing finger Pesek would say, "Did you?" Dorsetti would protest his innocence and Pesek would say, "Well, don't."

Dorsetti took both falls with a head twist, a pleasant little maneuver which might be described as an attempt to break the opponent's neck backward.

In the opener Stan Pesek, state middleweight champion, and Jungle Joe Bauer, Texas, went to a draw in 30 minutes after a bit of a rough house. The boys even put in a little overtime, tangling after the bell had rung. Earl Otto, Appleton, was the referee. The Texan started the dirty work but Pesek, who usually is the fair-haired boy,

Chandler Declares Outstanding Players Have Been Good Students

WAUPACA—Practically all of his outstanding basketball players have been good students scholastically, Coach William Chandler, Marquette University, Milwaukee, told Waupaca High school cagers, members of the Lions and Junior Chamber of Commerce, at a banquet here last night at Castle hall. The program was in honor of the high school quintet.

Chandler, a Waupaca product and the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Fremont Chandler, and a brother of Dr. Arthur Chandler, Waupaca, mentioned that in his eight years at Marquette University he hadn't had a player from his home town. He expressed the wish the time soon would come.

Coach Chandler was introduced by Tom Brown, ex-president of the Jaces. The master of ceremonies was Hugh Raymond.

Dr. Robert M. Orrick, president of the Jaces, paid tribute to the squad, particularly members of the third, fourth and fifth teams. His talk was followed by one by Lester M. Emans, superintendent of schools, who stressed that athletics is for the student, not the student for athletics.

Coach Augie VanderNeulen was invited by Mr. Raymond to speak and he briefly acknowledged the cooperation given the team by the superintendent of schools, the school board and his assistant, Vincent Graham, who carried on when it was necessary for him to be on tour with the Oshkosh All Stars.

Mr. VanderNeulen introduced the five seniors, who although belonging to the team for four years, never played on the first team until this year. They are Ronald Solie, Ward Sage, Bud Behm, Gerold Hopkins and Lawrence Court, Jim Carew, manager, also is a senior.

Mr. Raymond introduced Assistant Coach Graham, the entire squad and F. O. Stratton of the class of 1901, who has the distinction of having played on the first basketball team in Waupaca.

Even if the routines of the grapplers are becoming familiar, one can always derive an evening's amusement watching the fans. Anxiety, fear, pain, surprise, eagerness, and enjoyment all chase one another in rapid succession on the faces of some of the more ardent followers. Some of these fans work through all of the holds the grapplers do and must be more exhausted than the performers.

One woman about summed it up after a couple of the boys got into a com. "Icated hold and it was a question of who was trying to break whose leg when they said, "Gosh, how'd they get that way?"

Or maybe it should have been how do the fans get that way?

Milwaukee — Brothers are figuring prominently in the current Marquette university athletic picture. 300 Attend Annual Booster Banquet Of St. Mary High

Extra-Curricular Activities Vital Part of School Program, Cane Says

Menasha — More than 300 persons, boosters, donors of band uniforms, members of the grid, cage and boxing teams, band members, debaters, forensic winners and a capella chorus, attended the tenth annual booster banquet of St. Mary High school at the school auditorium Wednesday evening at which Attorney Arnold J. Cane discussed "Education for Leisure".

"Youth is not a time in life but a state of mind, the predominance of courage over timidity, the love of adventure over the love of ease. We grow old only by deserting our ideals, and judged by those standards, the Rev. Fr. Hummel is very young," the speaker said.

Youth overflows with energy, the speaker declared, which must be directed into proper channels or it will be expended helplessly. For that reason extra-curricular activities have become such an essential part of the school program. The problem of the school is to train for leisure as much as in the academic field.

Leisure Is Problem

The progress in development of the automobile and communications and the decrease in the hours of the work-week as well as the work-day have brought about the problem of what to do with leisure time. Too much leisure time is devoted to the radio and newspaper, according to the speaker. He advocated devoting some of the leisure time religiously in the attendance of retreats and masses.

Attorney Ray J. Fink acted as toastmaster. "The life of St. Mary parish has been the life of Father Hummel," Fink said in calling on the pastor of St. Mary parish, Father Hummel, who presided at the banquet. He quoted extensively from the new book by Edgar Hoover, chief of the F.B.I., on the cost of crime in America. The people must go back to the ethics of Christianity to escape that cost, according to Hoover.

Father Hummel declared that St. Mary school was doing real patriotic work in leading the young people away from criminality. This he declared was due to the high standards of education in a Catholic high school which make for liberty, loyalty and freedom of speech.

Father Becker Talks

The Rev. Joseph Becker belittled his own part in the success of St. Mary High school but said that the success was due to the fact that the school was dedicated to Catholic ideals with emphasis on the characteristics of the school colors, Lourdes blue and white, loyalty and purity.

"All thinking men and women see that education is a complete failure because children are educated in everything but God," the principal of St. Mary school said. St. Mary school was dedicated to Catholic ideals with emphasis on the characteristics of the school colors, Lourdes blue and white, loyalty and purity.

The musical portion of the program included a baritone horn solo by Harold Laux; a trombone quartet, "Neapolitan Nights" by Karl Kobal, Frank Schippling, Robert Riesel and Norman Griesbach; a vocal bass solo by Sylvester J. Lenosky, "When the Bells of the Lighthouse Ring" and a cornet trio, "Triplets of the Finest," by Clayton Hopfensperger, Donald Rausch and Donald Thorne.

Declares School Athletics Meant To Build Health

Neenah Superintendent Cites Dangers in Demand for Winners

Neenah—So long as the public clamors for winning teams, health and safety in high school interscholastic competition will be secondary, C. F. Hedges, superintendent of Neenah schools, said in a talk in which he played the interscholastic sports program Wednesday afternoon at the state congress of parents and teachers at Stevens Point.

Answering his own questions, "Why do school officials allow such games and why do parents consent to have their sons play?" Hedges said, "The reason lies in the false objectives that have been set up, largely through public opinion. This current concept is that athletic contests should be for public entertainment and that the chief objective is to win."

"This demand on the part of the people has put a pressure on boards of education, school administrators and athletic coaches, which interferes with carrying out a sound athletic educational program," he continued.

Cites Injuries

Hedges pointed out the large number of injuries suffered by football and basketball players and explained that about four out of every 100 boys in high schools participate in interscholastic competition, and then deduced, "We violate the fundamental principles of a modern school in that we are not providing opportunity for each pupil according to his interest and his needs, and we violate the American principle of equal opportunity for all."

"The high school is a democratic institution supported by all the people for the good of all the pupils. When judged by this standard the interscholastic sports program as now conducted is grievously at fault. My contention is that pressure outside the school has forced athletic officials to a state of affairs contrary to the ideal of the modern school."

In place of the present athletic setup, Hedges recommended the following 6-point program:

1. That the whole athletic situation be subjected to thoughtful unbiased study so that there shall not be a disproportionate emphasis on athletics as such in relation to school subjects.

2. That dangerous games be modified so as to greatly reduce the danger or that they be eliminated.

3. That emphasis on athletics whether intramural or interscholastic be chiefly on health and sportsmanship.

4. That interscholastic athletics be replaced to a large extent by intramural athletics.

5. That a greater variety of sports be taught with a view of appealing to many boys and girls, having athletics the whole year instead of seasonal, and using games, sports and activities that shall carry over to adult life.

6. That an athletic program be carried on during the summer for children and adults and to be under trained directors.

Hedges defined the three distinct kinds or phases of physical development, the physical education program, intramural and interscholastic athletics. He defined the modern school and then pointed out the importance of athletics in relation to the body and the negative side of sports.

The stamp is an imperforated 5-cent (Chinese) adhesive hand-printed by woodblock in blue ink on a white paper. Across the top in two lines of ideographs runs the legend "Shansi-Hopei-Chahar Border Districts Government Provisional Postoffice."

The simple design crudely drawn retains the lower half of the Kuomintang sun emblem of the Chinese Republic (National People's party), with which the Chinese reds recently concluded a truce after 10 years of civil war.

This stamp was issued at Wutai-shan, northern Shansi province, within 100 miles of Japanese army headquarters at Peiping, or Peking as Japan now calls it.

F. D. R. Picks An Eagle

President Roosevelt sketched his idea of a design for the new 6-cent air mail stamp to be issued as part of America's celebration of Air Mail Week (May 15-21). He suggested this issue believing the occasion warranted something beyond official clichés.

The White House design showed a blue eagle (wings folded), a double-line border in red, "U. S. POSTAGE" across the top and "6c" in either lower corner. Later Washington reports said the President and Postmaster Farley had chosen an outspread eagle motif, retaining the color scheme.

New Department Intended to Aid Industry in State

Ashe Solicits Constructive Ideas to Mold Poli- cies of Division

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A significant change in the relations of business and government in Wisconsin will be crystallized next Monday when Wisconsin's new department of commerce will begin functioning on a full-time basis.

Business men and manufacturers who have looked upon Madison in the past as a place to visit hurriedly during legislative sessions and during other times in order to protect what they conceived to be their interests and to protest against what they called punitive measures of politicians and the state government will have an official advocate under the capitol dome.

Thus William E. Ashe of Kaukauna, the department's new director, yesterday explained the importance of the new state agency which he will manage and which a 17 member committee of prominent business men and industrialists will direct.

Work Constructively

Further, Ashe emphasized, business will now have at its disposal an agency which will work for its positive good, one which will initiate policies and legislation designed to further the prosperity of all productive enterprise in the state, which will "create and conserve in Wisconsin a condition and atmosphere in which business and industry may operate and expand profitably; to attain recovery for Wisconsin's citizens through encouraging the production of wealth."

Ashe, who brings to his new job the experience of 19 years in the paper manufacturing industry as an executive of the Thimpany Pulp and Paper company, said that his immediate approach to his job will be "to endeavor to be of assistance to business and industry in any manner, in response to demands made on the department," and to "inventory the business and industry now in Wisconsin, and to try to determine what their assets and liabilities are as opposed to other states, to attempt to lessen the liabilities and to increase the assets."

Business must begin to do some clear and constructive thinking about government, and government has a duty to be concerned about business, Ashe feels.

He said that he will attempt to "mobilize whatever clear thinking is done by businessmen, educators, farmers, laborers, statesmen and the man in the street, into a plan and policy that means a better and more prosperous Wisconsin."

Formation of his department and his job, said Ashe, is a "challenge to every businessman and industrialist in the state to bring forward his constructive ideas."

At a press conference yesterday in his new office a reporter suggested that concern has been expressed in many quarters about the future of Wisconsin's paper manufacturing industry, and asked Ashe whether he has any specific plans to deal with its problems.

The director said that the paper industry will receive consideration along with other specialized manufacturing fields in the state, and added that southern competition in paper manufacture does not yet threaten to fine paper industry.

"Wisconsin's fine paper manufacturing will hold its own, although they are making pulp in the southern mills," he said.

Ashe also disclosed that he will begin the selection of his office staff with the appointment of an administrative assistant next Monday.

Seek Information On Use of Relief Funds in County

'Liberal Group' Wants $100,000,000 for
REA Projects

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Washington—Congressman George J. Schneider, Appleton Progressive, and two other congressmen, representing the "liberal group," are seeking conferences with the president and with the heads of spending and lending agencies on now the relief money is to be used.

The other congressmen named to the committee are H. Jerry Voorhis, California Democrat, and Kent E. Keller, Illinois Democrat.

Among the things on which they want information and assurances are:

Will the Reconstruction Finance corporation lend $100,000,000 to the Rural Electrification into areas not served by private utilities? (They hope so.)

Will the RFC lend to private utilities which obstruct the REA program? (They hope not.)

Limestone Project

Will money be appropriated for WPA labor for the production of limestone for farmers, and will the Farm Credit administration lend money to farmers to buy this and other fertilizer? (They hope so.)

What will the RFC's policy be on loans to business and industry?

How are the proposed $75,000,000 expenditure and $100,000,000 loans of Farm Security administration to be used?

According to Schneider, the group seeks the RFC loan to REA, which would not reduce the amount of relief and public works money to be spent, the elimination of the "Woodrum amendment," which was attached to the last relief bill, and which required that the money be spread out as to last throughout the year covered by the appropriation bill.

They are convinced that the relief money should be used as, when, and where the need arises, without any limit on how much could be used in any one month.

They want the lime projects specifically authorized by law, since the comptroller general ruled them out of order after they had been going on for some time.

Receive Complaints

They have received complaints that private utility companies are obstructing REA construction of lines into areas not served by the private companies, and they want to be sure that no federal funds will be lent to private companies to aid such obstruction, Schneider said.

"Latest reports indicate that at least 12,000,000 workers are now unemployed," Schneider said. "Business is at a low ebb and is continuing in that direction. National income is falling off, which means a shrinking of tax income."

"With this situation confronting the country, the national credit must be used to afford opportunity for employment and for relief for those in dire need. This situation must be met, and $1,250,000,000 for relief and for relief employment for WPA falls short of meeting the requirements over the seven-month period, beginning July 1."

Banner Year in Store for Sawdust Trail Travelers

BY JACK STINNETT

New York — Strike up the band, for it looks like a great season ahead under the big tops.

Here are the railroad circuses, their winter quarters and their owners or directors, with "Billboard's" estimates of their sizes in railroad cars:

Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey, Sarasota, Fla., 95 cars, owned by three estates of original Ringling brothers, and under executive management of 34-year-old John Ringling North.

Al G. Barnes-Sells-Floto, Baldwin Park, Calif., Ringling owned and operated, 30 cars.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, Peru, Ind., 30 cars, Howard Y. Barry.

T.M. McCoy's Great Wild West Show, Springfield, Ill., new this year, 30 cars, McCoy.

Cole Bros., Rochester, Ind., 20 cars, Jess Adkins and Zack Terrill.

Robbins Bros., Rochester, 30 cars, Adkins and Terrill.

Add to that, the truck shows and more than 150 carnivals, the hundreds of fair and celebration shows (Hamid alone is booking 400 events this year, not including 350 troupes, or unit acts, booked, mostly for one-night stands), and you have a picture of the 1938 circus business and its allied industries.

For the first time since 1933, "The Greatest Show on Earth" is back under Ringling management, with a curly-haired, round-faced John Ringling North, Yale man and son of the only sister of the original Ringling brothers, at the helm.

Not Colleague

There have been mutterings in some sawdust circles that "The Big One," as fans call the Ringling show, is going collegiate. But John has a different explanation. Idol of young John's youth was "Uncle John," greatest showman of the Ringling clan, who died in 1936.

"We are just trying to put into the show the Ringling touch—Uncle John's showmanship—the kind that made it the 'greatest show on earth,'" he says.

The "Ringling touch" this year included a completely new costume and hanging of the show, with Charles LeMaire, the stage and costume designer in charge.

The second "Ringling touch" was obtaining a "feature attraction"—a giant gorilla, "Gargantua the Great," is being exhibited in an air-conditioned cage, enclosed in steel bars and shatter-proof glass.

In Philadelphia, with the McCoy, Cole Bros. and Ringling shows following each other in close succession, they are having a "billion battle," the like of which has not been seen since the horse-and-bugger days.

Urges Larger Fund For Children's Play To Cut Crime Costs

Stevens Point—Increased appropriations for children's play as a crime prevention move were advocated by J. R. Batchelor, New York, of the National Recreation association, at the Wisconsin Congress of Parents and Teachers yesterday.

He said society is "missing the mark" somewhere when about $13,000,000 out of the nation's annual income of $50,000,000,000 are expended for arrest, trial and care of those who commit crimes.

"Are we not penny wise and pound foolish when we cut out appropriations for play—where 98 per cent of the crime starts—and pay for it later in billions unestimated?" he asked.

Mrs. Alathens I. Smith, psychologist at Shorewood schools, suggested that children's report cards be "chatty" notes from the teacher instead of mathematical grades, which she said have "brought unhappiness rather than encouragement when comparisons have been made in family and neighbor circles."

Mrs. W. H. Whitsett, Superior, was re-elected second vice president of the congress. E. C. Gile, Shorewood, was named treasurer and Mrs. W. C. Brenner, Waukesha, historian. No other officers are to be chosen this year.

Does the Constitution Require Tax Exemption?

At the present time the Federal government may not tax the income from bonds or official salaries of the states, and the states may not tax Federal bonds and salaries. This means that there are between 50 and 60 billions of dollars of income which is partially or wholly exempt from taxation by the states or the Federal government, and there are some 31 million officeholders who have a tax privilege that other citizens do not enjoy. These immunities do not rest on any express provision in the Constitution. They rest on a line of judicial decisions originating in 1819 with the famous opinion of Chief Justice Marshall, M'Culloch v. Maryland.

Ever since the war, that is ever since the government created a great debt that was wholly or partly tax exempt, every Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Glass, Mr. Mellon, Mr. Mills, and Mr. Morgenthau, has urged that steps be taken to end tax exemption in securities to be issued in the future. But it has always been assumed by the Treasury and by the best lawyers in the country that in the face of the judicial decisions this most desirable reform could not be carried out except by amending the Constitution, and it has generally been recognized by politicians and students of politics that such an amendment, since it would make official salaries taxable, has small chance of being ratified by the states. The 24 million state and local employees would presumably have enough political influence at home to resist effectively a proposal to make them pay Federal income tax, especially since they would have as their allies over a million Federal employees objecting to the payment of state income taxes.

Federal Law Would End Immunity in Future

President Roosevelt has now proposed to overcome this difficulty by enacting a Federal statute ending the immunity for the future, and letting the Supreme Court say whether the old presidential standard, whether the Constitution can be re-interpreted. The President's suggestion is not, as some commentators have suggested, another attack on the judiciary and on constitutional principle. In spite of the decisions there is a real doubt about the whole matter. The Constitution is silent about it and it would be entirely proper for Congress to ask the court to reconsider the problem.

That the matter is debatable is evident from what happened when the sixteenth amendment was before the New York State legislature for ratification. Chief Justice Hughes was at that time Governor of New York and he hesitated to recommend ratification because he thought the amendment would allow the Federal government to tax income from New York State bonds. His objections were overcome by assurances from Senator Elihu Root and Senator Borah, but the sponsor of the amendment, Senator Brown, thought Governor Hughes might be right. So the matter is at least debatable.

Doesn't Apply To Taxation Of Income

If it is debated, a most cogent argument can be made. I think that the principles of the basic decision of John Marshall in M'Culloch v. Maryland do not apply to the taxation of incomes.

The case, it will be recalled, arose out of the attempt of the State of Maryland to tax the notes of a bank not chartered by the State of Maryland. This meant the Bank of the United States which had been chartered by Congress.

When the case reached Chief Justice Marshall, he held that if a state could tax the national bank, it could destroy the bank by making the tax big enough, and thus a state could prevent the Federal government from doing what it had a right to do. If the states may tax the national bank, said Marshall, "they may tax the mail; they may tax the mint; they may tax patent rights; they may tax papers of the custom house; they may tax judicial process; they may tax all the means employed by the government, to an excess which would defeat all the ends of government." This was not intended by the American people. They did not design to make their government dependent on the states.

Now it seems clear enough that what Marshall was talking about were taxes specifically laid on some particular agency of the government; thus for example, a state tax on the salaries of the Federal judges might abolish the Federal judiciary in that state. But would he have held that an income tax laid on all incomes alike could destroy the Federal judiciary or imperil its independence? Maryland was trying to lay a tax on the national bank that it was not laying on Maryland banks. It was not discrimination, it seems to me, that is the essence of Marshall's objection. For that made the tax not a revenue measure but a device for penalizing the national bank. And it was with this in mind that Marshall uttered the famous dictum that "the power to tax involves the power to destroy."

A tax which is not directed against any particular security or salary but falls equally on all incomes of the same size does not, it seems to me, have any of the characteristics of the tax that Marshall was considering. This, I take it, was the view of Mr. Justice Holmes in 1920 when, discussing an income tax on judges' salaries, he said in the dissenting opinion in Evans v. Gore that "to require a man to pay the taxes that all other men have to pay cannot possibly be made an instrument to attack his independence as a judge." Marshall's principle Holmes dealt with by saying

Lions Club Plants Trees at Long Lake

Clintonville Group Hears Talks by Conservation Leaders

Clintonville — Members of the Clintonville Lions club planted approximately 200 trees on the clubhouse grounds at Long Lake Tuesday. Following their weekly dinner there Tuesday evening, George Stevens and Martin Falk, officials of the Clintonville Fish and Game Protective association, talked to the club about the screen dam, which is to be constructed at the outlet of Long Lake as a conservation project. This dam will prevent carp and other rough fish from coming up into the lake. A committee of Lions appointed to assist with the project includes William Schauder, Jr., Harold Heuer, and James Mallick.

Mrs. Carl Rulisch, Mrs. Roy Barker and Mrs. Ben Rathke were hostesses at a "pyramid budge party" for the benefit of the Junior Woman's club Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. N. Twelfth street. A dessert-luncheon was followed by three tables of cards. High honors at each table went to Mrs. Manville Stearns, Mrs. Orval Maluag and Mrs. Eldor Schmitt.

Another in the series of pyramid parties was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. John Kafka and Mrs. Gordon Juettel at the latter's home on Fourteenth street. High scores at each table were won by Mrs. Arthur Campbell and Mrs. J. H. Stein.

Mrs. Arthur Scheive was hostess to the Leisure Hour club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Hemlock street. She was accompanied there by her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Kirk of Rhinelander.

Report 3 Children of Every 1,000 in State are Crippled

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—There are three crippled children under 21 years of age of normal mentality per thousand of general population in Wisconsin.

Marquette L. Ingram, director of the department of public instruction, said in a new statistical bulletin today.

The department estimated that there are now about 9,000 crippled children under 21 years of age in Wisconsin, of which 7,794 active cases are now on file at the crippled children office.

Of the total 182 are in Brown county, and 153 in Outagamie county, it was reported.

Recent legislation requiring all schools to report cases of handicapped children to the state authorities once a year will enable the division to maintain its files accurately, it was said.

Diagnosis summaries of crippled children examined during 1932, the report says, show that the most common affliction of crippled children is poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. Significantly, the report gives malnutrition as another common trouble, although it ranks fifteenth.

According to the state figures, slightly more than 54 per cent of the crippled children are males, and about 45 per cent females. Most of them are between 14 and 21 years of age, although the beginning of disability is given as under seven years in 74 per cent of all cases.

Wisconsin maintains 10 municipal orthopedic schools for children, and the state orthopedic hospital for children in Madison. Among the local schools are those in Appleton and Green Bay, which last year cared for 80 and 60 children, respectively. In all the state schools 792 children were enrolled in 1932. The crippled children's division last year also held clinics at scattered points throughout the state, including Appleton and Oconto Falls in the northeastern section, where almost 200 children were examined.

Here are statistics on the number of children in the counties of the Appleton area: Winnebago 219; Calumet 30; Waupaca 112; Shawano 111; Manitowish 131.

Boettiger Has New Volume Published

"Fundamentals of Sociology" Book by Lawrence Professor

A 753-page volume, "Fundamentals of Sociology" written by Dr. Louis A. Boettiger, professor of sociology at Lawrence college, has been published by the Ronald Press company of New York city.

Described as a "systematic introduction to the whole field of sociology with a definite historical perspective," the book is divided into four parts, respectively entitled "Introduction," "The Social Process," tered points throughout the state, including Appleton and Oconto Falls in the northeastern section, where almost 200 children were examined.

Here are statistics on the number of children in the counties of the Appleton area: Winnebago 219; Calumet 30; Waupaca 112; Shawano 111; Manitowish 131.

Human Traits in the Social Process," and "Social Structures." Problem selections and suggested readings are presented at the close of each chapter. Relevant knowledge of economics, politics, biology, and psychology as it affects the field of sociology is presented. Of the book, the publishers state: "Professor Boettiger's philosophy . . . is positive. He provides a strongly realistic analysis of the social problems which threaten to overwhelm western society, and sets forth lines of positive action to deal with them."

Jacs Will Elect Five Directors at Meeting

Paper Industry Leads in Keeping Employees on Job

Unemployment Insurance Contributions Far Outweigh Withdrawals

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The state's pulp and paper industry, which is particularly important in the economic life of the Fox River Valley and Wisconsin River Valley areas, again is demonstrating an unusual stability of employment during depression. O. A. Fried, statistician for the state industrial commission and the division of unemployment compensation noted yesterday.

Fried pointed out that the paper manufacturers, by maintaining their employment figures at a steady level, are leading most of the important manufacturing industries in the state in the relation of unemployment insurance payment contributions to benefit withdrawals.

While Wisconsin manufacturing industry as a whole is generally matching benefit withdrawals with its contributions each month, paper makers are building up their reserves steadily despite the business recession of the last few months because they have been few prolonged layoffs in their mills.

Reserve Mount
Although the tremendous volume of work in the division during the last few months makes up to date statistics unavailable, Fried cites December and January figures which he believes are still typical to illustrate the experience of the paper industry under the job insurance system.

During December 53 pulp and paper manufacturing establishments paid into their unemployment insurance reserves approximately $55,000 on a payroll aggregating almost $1,800,000. Employees of the paper industry withdrew only about $5,000, or about one seventh of the sum their employers had set aside for unemployment benefits during the previous month, showing that despite the current depressed period, paper manufacturers are steadily building up their reserves.

It is likely, Fried believes, that the paper industry will be the first, or one of the first, to reach the point at which the law allows a cessation of contributions because of a safe reserve accumulation.

Heavy Investment
Expertly point out, however, that prosperity in the industry can be deduced from the fact that its unemployment is low. The industry is characterized by an exceptional heavy capital investment, it is pointed out, with correspondingly heavy fixed charges, so that paper manufacturers in some instances may find it more economical to continue operations at a slender margin of profit in order to prevent steep losses by complete suspension.

The unemployment compensation department this week for the first time made public a summary of unemployment benefits paid in counties and localities.

The summary shows that for the month of December 668 benefit checks were sent to industrial workers in Outagamie county, representing a total of $3,328. They were divided among the following communities: Appleton 390, $1,812; Bear Creek 4, $28; Black Creek 3, $22; Combined Locks 2, $17; Dale 1, $4.80; Hortonville 3, $24; Kaukauna 150, $1,321; Kimberly 8, $65; Little Chute 15, $142; Nichols 6, $56; Oneida 3, $25; Seymour 74, $383; Shiocton 2, $9.60; Sugar Bush 7, $46.

Number of checks and total payments to employees laid off during December in other counties in the Appleton area: Winnebago 1,421 checks, $10,904 (165 checks in Menasha, 88 in Neenah, 1,101 in Oshkosh); Brown 454, $3,924; Calumet 538, $476; Manitowish 1,496, $13,757; Waupaca 71, $483; Shawano 110, $717.

All the thorns of life cannot be avoided, but it is entirely unnecessary for anyone to suffer the sharp disappointment that coffee of unsatisfying quality invariably brings to the taste. This was the belief of Hills Bros. when they began in the coffee business 60 years ago. So they eliminated this "thorn" in coffee drinking by gathering in, year after year, only the finest coffees for their blend. The fragrance of a cup of freshly-made Hills Bros. Coffee announces this excellence. The flavor is proof that "the thorn has been left behind."

----So She Got Her Man

Excuse it please, if we start off a bit like a movie show about the Northwest Mounted, because nothing could be further from our mind. What we really are referring to is a certain smart young miss who got her man by the simple process of proving what a swell wife she would make.

And how did she do that? Why, by buying a steak at Voecks and cooking it just so! The steaks and chops you buy here are properly cut, with surplus fat, skin and bone removed — and because they're quality meats, they DO taste better! Fairly priced, of course.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The story so far: Judith Goodloe, of an old Maryland family, marries self-made Reuben Oliver for his money--only to discover he is bankrupt. After a poverty-stricken period during which twins are born, Reuben gets work in a lumber camp managed by Gary Brent--the man Judith loves. Reuben is in the woods when Judith arrives, and Gary provides a cabin for her and takes her dancing. Blind with rage at this discovery Reuben removes the babies to his tent. When Judith and Reuben meet the stored-up resentment of months is uncorked.

Chapter 33
His Own Laws

REUBEN walked to the tent's flap, untied and flung it aside. Stooping to pass through it, he tossed her a crooked smile that reminded her absurdly of Judykin's when her feelings were hurt. "You're making another try for Brent, eh? Wish you luck this time!" The flap fell shut behind him-- "Wish you luck this time!" Reuben's words echoed through the tent, echoed around the world. They made a roar like thunder. Judith, waiting for the reverberations to die away, stood staring at the still swaying tent flap like one hypnotized.

Reuben had said that--Reuben! But for his coat flung across one of the beds and his pocket knife lying atop a pile of blankets she could have believed the whole episode a dream.

It wasn't a dream. She and Reuben had done the very thing they had so carefully avoided--quarrelled! Very thoroughly, too, but at that they hadn't said all they wanted to say. Judith knew it by the tumult that seethed and foamed within her. By her tensed fingers, curved like talons--mute evidence that she wanted to scratch and claw!

It didn't seem possible. What had she been thinking of to allow such an impasse? Gary could have avoided this vulgar situation easily. Judith felt a sudden shame.

"Gary was never rectoral like a trapped animal, Gary never had to live in Casper Street or in a tent and scrimp and save and worry and try not to hate."

She had come further than Gary. The going had been hard. It would be harder. Infinitely Judith knew that. What had just happened between her and Reuben was just the lifting of the lid and putting out the first feeble sputtering of a restive volcano.

"I won't stay--I won't degrade myself quarreling, fighting. I'll go back to Casper Street in the morning!"

"Then what?" The tent's sloping white walls shrieked it at her. "Then what--what?"

No matter what, she was going away from here in the morning. Going away from Reuben. She hated him, crude, rude--

Gary! If she went away now she wouldn't see Gary, wouldn't go rid--

But of course she'd see Gary. Wherever she went now she'd see

High School Will Entertain Pupils Of Rural Schools

1-Day Program Will be Held at Kaukauna Next Week

Kaukauna — A rural school day will be held here at Kaukauna High school next Thursday, James T. Judd, agricultural instructor, announced yesterday.

"The purpose of rural school days is to acquaint the county pupils with the conditions in high school, and let them see just what a modern school is like. Statistics show that too many rural boys and girls fail to continue their schooling beyond the eighth grade. The state of Wisconsin ranks very close to the top of the list in the number of boys and girls of high school age that are out of school," Judd said.

"The time has come when it behooves us to try and remedy this unfortunate situation. It is unfortunate especially in many cases, where the youth has had the chance to attend high school, but has stayed home because he or she wasn't sure what was available in the high school," Judd continued in outlining the reasons for rural school days.

From Three Counties
"It is axiomatic that in one afternoon we can not sell a boy or girl on the idea that he or she should attend high school, but we are sure that the familiarity with the high school building and the faculty, that a boy or girl may get from attending one or two rural school days, may be a contributing factor to a fortunate decision. For these reasons, many of the high school agricultural departments in the state sponsor a rural school day each year.

Pupils will attend from schools in Brown, Calumet and Outagamie counties, Judd said.
The program will open at 12:30 with registration by schools and end at 4:15 with a lunch. Contests, such as grain judging and identification of weeds, seeds and varieties of livestock will be held.

Lions Complete Preparations for Circus Showings

Performances Will be Given in High School Gym Saturday, Sunday

Kaukauna — All preparations for the Kaukauna Lions club indoor circus here Saturday and Sunday at the high school gymnasium have been completed according to A. H. Mongin, Jr., general chairman.

The circus, directed by William G. Schultz of Manitowoc, consists of a group of nearly 40 persons ranging in age from 10 to 19 years. Its appearance here will be the first of the season. The first performance will be held Saturday afternoon, followed by showings Saturday evening, Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening.

Some of the acts have been developed by Schultz and are rarely seen even in the largest circuses.

The revolving acts, with a clown and a girl whirling at a dizzy pace while performing a semi-comedy routine, is one of these.

Perch Ladder Act
The Boswell family, Wesley and his wife, Marie, present an exhibition in balance in the perch ladder act. While her husband balances the 14-foot steel ladder in his belt, Marie mounts to the top and performs a series of acrobatics. Wesley is one of the oldest clowns in the troupe, having been with them 11 years.

Many of the acts will be presented in the air above the heads of the audience in real circus fashion. A revolving, trapeze act, midair quintuple trapeze act, teeter board acrobats, human butterfly act, rocking table act, clown swing, swinging ladders, comedy acrobats, dance of the reptiles and other clown numbers are in the circus repertoire.

The high school gymnasium will take on a real circus atmosphere, according to Herman Baier, chairman of the concessions committee. Ice cream, candy, popcorn and balloons will be sold. All of the acts performed on the floor will take place within a real circus ring.

table tennis, badminton, volleyball, pyramids, tumbling, marching tactics and boxing.

In the sports parade captains of high school teams will represent their sport. Captains who will participate are John Duffy, boxing; Glen Vandehey, wrestling; Cliff Vanevenhoven, basketball; Leroy Frank and Robert Niesen, football, and Jack Mainville, archery.

Farmer Takes Up Art But Won't Paint Vases
Oklahoma City, Okla.—(AP)—When farmer Francis Bender, 75, was a boy he wanted to be an artist. But he couldn't do much toward reaching his goal because, as he puts it, "teacher would make you stand in front of the class if you so much as drew a picture on your slate."

So he grew up to be a farmer. Now retired, he has taken up art for "pleasure and relaxation." He has his own ideas about drawing which even his art teacher can't change. When a display of vases was arranged for some work in still life sketches he said: "I don't want to paint that. I want to paint a horse." "Beauty is where you find it. Farm life is familiar to me and I find beauty in a horse, a cow, a granary and even a pig pen."

Spraying Fruit Trees In Bloom May Harm Bees
Farmers and small orchardists are urged by the department of agriculture and markets in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, to avoid spraying fruit trees when in full bloom because of the danger of poisoning bees.

The practice of spraying trees while in full bloom is also wasteful, according to E. L. Chambers, state entomologist, inasmuch as the time to combat worms attacking apple, plum, and cherry trees is just after the petals have fallen.

To be effective, the arsenate of lead spray which is used must be applied to the calyx of the developing fruit, and the calyx is not exposed until the flowers have lost their petals.

Special orchard spray schedule tags are distributed by Wisconsin nurseries on fruit trees sold to the customers and copies can be secured by writing the department of agriculture and markets, division of insects and plant diseases, Chambers pointed out.

Set July 1 As Deadline For Indemnity Payments
Indemnity will be paid only up to July 1 on reactors found in herds on which the Bang's free certificate has lapsed. Dr. James S. Healy, inspector in charge of the United States bureau of animal industry at Madison, has advised R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

After that date no indemnity will be paid on reactors if the herd is not in good standing as a certified herd.

Several thousand owners of Bang's certified herds have neglected to retest at the end of a year, Dr. Healy said. He cautioned that by neglecting the retests the herd owners are likely to grow careless in keeping up safeguards to prevent Bang infection from being introduced into their herds.

Ernst Wiekert, 14, route 2, Appleton, has entered his purebred Holstein bull calf in the special purebred bull project sponsored by the 4-H club leaders federation and the county breed associations. Ernst has been enrolled in the calf project for the last four years and in the calf project for three years. He won state recognition recently in the calf project and has exhibited livestock at the state fair two years. The calf was born Aug. 7, 1937 and is from the herd of Walter Wiekert, his father. The dam of the calf has a record of 347.5 pounds of butterfat and 9,262 pounds of milk in 305 days, twice a day milking. Ernst is a member of the Wide-Awake-Forward 4-H club. Mr. and Mrs. Wiekert and Mrs. August Biebow are the leaders.

Gary. The knowledge sent her head up. But Casper Street would be unbearably hot—

She hadn't dreamed Reuben would dare to speak harshly to her. Hadn't dreamed he had the nerve. He'd always tried to hard to please—flushed, stuttered, been embarrassed at her slightest displeasure. Been servile—almost. What had happened to change him so entirely?

She did not blame herself. Something or somebody—What? Who? "Cissy!" The answer zigzagged across her reason.

"No!" Judith protested vehemently aloud. "No!" Her self respect wouldn't countenance that. Cissy had taken one man from her—it would be absurd to have her take two!

Reuben Acts
The sun was well up before Reuben found a semblance of sanity. The finding had been hard. His rage clung to him like myriads of persistent prickly burrs. All night he had roamed the forest—a jungle beast. Passion, raw, primitive stalked him. He wanted to strike, to hurt, even as he had been hurt. Reason tried to tell him that he was placing undue importance upon a trifling incident. He would not listen to reason. Judith had done this to him—Judith! And after the way he had slaved and scurried to bring her here.

His mind veered to Pike. It was all his fault for not preparing the tent, but murdering Pike wouldn't help any now. He must prove to Judith that he was as good a man as Brent—By gum that was what he'd have to do! Not next week, next month, next year, but now—this minute! He'd show her! He'd been a fool to take Judith and her codes so seriously. Hereafter he'd make his own laws. Live by them! Fight for himself and the devil take the hindmost.

The suddenness with which he came to this decision quelled his rage, steadied the dizzying landslide. The time to act was now.

But first he went to the pool for a swim. The cold water stimulated and banished, for the time, his weariness. He went to the community hall for breakfast. He ate a good one. By eight thirty he was rapping on the door of Gary's cabin.

Alf admitted him. "Mawning Mist' Oliver. You'll come after you cah?"

"I came to see Mr. Brent. Am I too early?"

"Not at all," Gary, shrugging, into a coat came into view, "Come in, Oliver. How are you?"

"Fine." The two men shook hands. Reuben took the chair Gary pushed forward, declined a cigar, pushed forward, declined a cigar, pushed forward, declined a cigar.

"I'm deeply grateful for your courtesy to Mrs. Oliver." It cost him something to say that.

And Gary knowing it did: "I'd like to do more—for Judith."

"Thanks," Reuben said and added without preamble: "I know I'm making an unheard of request for a woodsman but I'd like to rent that cabin."

"Impossible, but you're welcome to use it until it's wanted."

"I wouldn't consider that," stily.

"Why not?"

"I don't relish favors," bluntly.

"or being put out over night. If I can rent it at your own figure—recklessly."

"It has never been done."

"So I've been told, but with all of them empty and the season so slack—I'd like to make my family comfortable."

"I'd like to see them comfortable," Gary drummed on the arm of the chair.

"Well?"

"There's an unwritten law about cabins—but I can always put up a friend."

Hot color crept up under Reuben's tan. "Need I remind you that you're my boss?"

"Can't I be your friend too?"

"It's possible but as I said before, obligations are unpleasant." Reuben stood up. "Nine times out of ten they lead to complications."

War to the Knife
It was Gary's turn to flush. He said: "Sit down, man!" He thought: "It's my one chance to keep Judith here." Suddenly keeping Judith where he could see her every day was the only important thing in life. He said: "How long do you want the shack?"

"Until I get a better job or with a slight smile, 'until you discharge me."

Gary longed to do just that—right this minute—but that meant Judith would go away too. He said: "If the season picks up, there'll be the devil to pay if we can't house the buyer when they come."

"You just said that isn't likely."

"It isn't, with building at a standstill."

Their eyes met, held. Each knew it was war to the knife.

Reuben thought: "I used to think I was the better man—I still think so."

Gary thought: "I'll show this bounder up to Judith. Let him get into debt, then fire him. Serve him right." He said: "You win, Oliver! The cabin is yours."

"Fine! Now about the rent?"

"Fifty dollars a month." It was an unfair price.

It was $25 more than Reuben could afford to pay with the rent of the Casper Street house still

State Assessors To Make Reports On Farm Acreages

Statistics Will be Gathered On Some 34 Different Items

Nearly 1,800 Wisconsin and Outagamie County assessors soon will make their annual report on the acreages and livestock numbers of the farms in the state, according to the crop reporting service in a communication to R. C. Swanson, county agent.

This year there are 34 farm statistics items on the assessor's reports. Some items reflect the changes in food consumption as compared with a generation ago when the first report was made. The state has become one of the important producers of canning crops.

This year will be the second time that the acreage of tomatoes has been taken. Some changes in feed crops have taken place in recent years, such as the introduction of soybeans. Fox farming is becoming important in the state and the number of foxes will be given for the first time. In fact, the crop reporting service pointed out, Wisconsin has one of the longest crops lists in the nation.

With the diversification in farming and an accounting of nearly 200,000 farms in the state, the assessors are going to have a busy time for a while. Agriculture is the state's greatest industry, and the measuring of its growth and changes is a large job. Land and buildings alone are valued at more than a billion dollars, and there are well over 21 million acres or about 67 per cent of the state's land in farms.

It is estimated that the gross farm income in the state last year was about 380 million dollars. As compared with a generation ago, there is well over a million more acres of farm land and about 10,000 new farms.

going on. "If you'll give me the key?"

Gary got it. "I'll send Alf over to help you move."

"Please don't. There's only a bag or two. I'll take Judith's Rolls back though. She bought it for $30."

"Some bargain!" Gary followed his visitor out of doors and watched him get into the dejected car.

Reuben's world was stationary once more. The key in his pocket steadied it. Then last night's quarrel came vividly back and set it rocking again. Suppose Judith refused to move to the cabin? What would he say to her? What would she say to him?

Judith was contemplating the outdoor grill in some bewildered moment when Reuben arrived. She looked fresh as the morning in white linen, a maize ribbon banding her hair. She heard the clatter of the car and turned expecting to see Gary.

"Good morning," Reuben achieved a casualness he did not feel.

"Good morning," Judith's voice was almost amiable. She reminded herself that after last night she should be indignant, unapproachable, but stirring among the ashes of her anger she could not even start the ghost of a flame. Just indifference. She thought: "He can't hurt me. He doesn't matter. I'll see Gary today." She said:

WISCONSIN GRASSHOPPER EGG SURVEY

Principal battle areas in the war to be waged against grasshoppers next summer are indicated in this map prepared by the department of agriculture and markets to show the severity of grasshopper infestations in Wisconsin. The degree of infestation in each county was determined by a grasshopper egg survey made last fall by state and federal entomologists. Thirty-two counties are severely infested with the hoppers. All counties, however, are hosts to these crop destroyers. The federal government will allot Wisconsin $200,000 this year for ingredients to go into grasshopper bait. The money will be used to purchase enough materials to make up approximately 10,000 tons of dry grasshopper bait.

Overplanting Problem of Home Vegetable Gardener

It does not play to plant more of a vegetable than a person or family is able to use and it is not desirable to plant more of a kind which does not retain good quality long. James G. Moore of the college of agriculture states in a communication to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

Two crops frequently overplanted at a given planting are radishes and head lettuce. Moore states. A 20-foot row of radishes and 15 to 20 plants of lettuce are about as much as the ordinary family is likely to use during the early period.

Fifteen to twenty heads of early cabbage should be adequate and these require about a 30-foot row. Moore points out. Early planted carrots can be used for winter storage, so overplanting is not wasteful. Twenty to forty sets of green onions and about a hundred feet of seed or transplants for winter are adequate in this variety for the average family.

Most families use considerable sweet corn and this should not be planted in a single row. Three rows side by side are satisfactory. Moore says. Tomatoes, one of the standard crops, are used extensively. When planted for canning as well as for fresh fruit, 30 to 40 plants should be grown.

"Do you know anything about this grill?"

"We won't need it." He drew the key from his pocket and held it out to her. "To the cabin you so regretted to leave."

Her hero eats BREAD

YOUR children, who are in school today, will be Wisconsin's leaders tomorrow. Now is the time to help them build for the future.

Boys and girls who want to be leaders in school should eat plenty of bread. It helps to build up energy for school work and play. A 4 o'clock lunch helps—bread and milk, bread and meat, bread and cheese, or just plain bread and butter.

Bread is our outstanding energy food. It sustains youth and old age. Observe WISCONSIN BREAD WEEK. Serve bread and other baked wheat foods at every meal.
